AFFAIRS ABROAD.

Health of Duke of Mecklengburg-Schwerin

Is Causing Much Alarm Throughout Germany.

His Known Russian Sympathies Create Comment.

The Trouble Over the Two Holy Coats Settled.

Emperor William Has Improved His Opportunity to Again Snub Bismarck--Miscellaneous Mention.

London, Aug. 29.—One of the most serious problems in Germany, according to a Berlin dispatch, is the condition of the grand duke Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

This prince, although but 40 years of age, is little more than an animated corpse. His lower limbs are paralyzed and the upper part of his body is also in some degree affected.

It has been often thought to be dying, but he lives on, enduring great pain, and utterly useless as a ruler over one of the most important principalities in Germany. He is the proudest of German sovereigns, claiming a descent that makes the Hohenzollerns parvenus by comparison, and calls himself Prince of the Wends.

Being married to a princess of Russia, he has always been more Russian than German in his sympathies. It is seriously proposed to appoint a regent of the grand dukedom, but no one has dared to suggest the matter to the grand duke. His son and heir is about 9 years old. The duke's brother, Paul Frederick, has been spoken of as regent, but it is said to be objectionable to the czar, who, on the ground of relationship, is taking great interest in the matter.

Much anxiety prevails in Mecklenburg-Schwerin and Mecklenburg-Strelitz are extremely particular in their relations to the federal government.

It is said at Berlin that the order pour le merite, made vacant by the death of Gen. Moltke, was intended by a majority of the surviving members to be conferred on Prince Bismarck; but the kaiser, who has a right of veto on any selection made, although not a right of appointment, gave it to be understood that he would exercise the veto if Bismarck's name were presented to him.

Thereupon, as previously cabled, General Von Verdy, the German ex-minister of war, was selected, and the nomination approved by the kaiser.

It is the only Prussian order which Bismarck does not possess and its bestowal would have been highly gratifying to him. The fact that a man versed only in military science was named for the coveted distinction is said to be due to the kaiser's desire to foster a spirit of emulation among his commanding officers, and he has caused no little ill-feeling in art and literary circles in Berlin.

The police of Prague have forbidden the wearing of white caps in that city. The round flat cap is considered a Russian designation and has of late been quite popular in Bohemia as showing friendship for Russia and defiance of Austria.

A number of Russian excursionists visited the Prague exposition a few days ago, wearing the white caps, and refused to remove them when requested. The police did not attempt to make an arrest for fear of causing a riot. When the Russian visitors, however, got one of their number to play the Russian national hymn the Austrian hymn was played at the same time on other instruments.

State Counsellor Peter, the Russian visitor who played the Russian hymn, was afterward expelled from Prague by the police.

A truce has been patched up between the advocates of the holy coat of Treves and those who upheld the holy coat of Argenteuil in France. It is said to be agreed that the holy coat of Argenteuil is the small coat worn by Christ as a child, while, according to the Treves documents, the coat in the latter city is that worn by the Savior at the crucifixion.

Hence the congregation of Rites has decided that the two coats belong to different periods, and that both are genuine.

HE MUST BE A DEMOCRAT.

Candidates for the Interstate Commerce Berth.

A Number of Men Who are Willing to Serve the Country in Bragg's Place.

Washington, Aug. 29.—For the first time since Harrison became president the democrats are becoming really interested in an administration appointment. Gen. Bragg's successor in the interstate commerce commission must be a democrat, and in consequence the democrats are interested in the appointment.

There are said to be a number of applicants.

Bragg being from Alabama, that state, it seems, feels that it is entitled to the successorship, and consequently a number of prominent men from that state have cast out lightning rods.

Judge Allen H. Morrill, of Alabama, a former law partner of Senator Pugh, is an applicant, and it is supposed will have the support of the Alabama senator. Ex-Representative Hammond of Georgia is also seeking the place, and it is understood that Representative Hillary Herbert, of Alabama, would be willing to resign his seat in the house to accept the chair made vacant by the death of Gen. Bragg.

Here it is thought that the logical man for the place is ex-Senator Reagan, of Texas. He is the father of the interstate commerce commission and has ever devoted profound study to interstate commerce.

At present he is the head of the Texas state railroad commission, having resigned his seat in the senate to accept the appointment from Gov. Hogg. There is no assurance that Judge Reagan would take the place, but there seems to be a general belief that because of his profound interest in interstate commerce that he would accept if Harrison tendered him the place.

Mr. Reagan, however, is known to be not subject to corporation influence, and this may have the effect of barring him from Harrison's consideration.

Some people think that perhaps Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, would accept the place and it is almost certain that if he would take it, and cared for it and asked for it that Harrison would give it to him.

John Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, one of the most eminent lawyers in the United States, is also suggested and so is ex-Congressman Rogers of Arkansas.

Mr. Rogers would make a splendid commissioner. He is a man of superb qualifications for the place, a lawyer of ability, a citizen of intelligence and a man of infinite courage. Either Rogers or Reagan would be satisfactory from appearances of democratic sentiment as it is revealed in Washington, but the general opinion is that if Davis of West Virginia, who is a railroad president and a corporation man generally, father-in-law of Steve Elkins, the cousin of Senator Gorman, a friend of Harrison and a chum of Blaine's, and a hale-fellow-well-met with the bosses of both parties, will accept the place he can have it.

Corbett and Mitchell.

Boston, Aug. 29.—A member of the company with which Jim Corbett is traveling, has received a telegram which says: "Corbett answers Mitchell that he will fight him to a finish with gloves for $10,000 a side—match four months after signing articles, before athletic club offering largest purse."

A ROW IN THE RANKS.

Hahn and Squire Have Put on the Gloves.

Some Very Plain Talk Between the Two.

The League President Has Moved Into the Capital City and Proposes to Run the State Campaign.

Columbus, Aug. 29.—"We don't speak as we pass by" is an old saying that just now applies to two shining lights in the republican party. Both gentlemen have a place in the councils of the party and each aspires to leadership. One also aspires to official honors and emoluments, especially the latter.

The other already has an office and is also ahead in the honors. It is hardly probable that the two gentlemen will come to blows, because it is just now supposed the republicans are dwelling together in unity. That's what they all say in public, but privately we are told differently.

If the wordy war should end in a "mill," as the prize fighters term it, the engagement would outstrip all other attractions on the republican boards and for the time being at least McKinley and his tin tariff thunder would drop out of sight and hearing.

Each one is the possessor of a fine physique, they size up well and are capable of holding out for a number of rounds, certainly long enough to play havoc with each other's beauty. That this is a fact will be conceded by all when it is stated that the quotation above is pertinent to the relations now existing between the Hon. W. M. Hahn, the Sherman-McKinley chairman of the Foraker-Republican executive committee, and W. I. Squire, Esq., president of the state league of republican clubs.

Mr. Hahn was selected as the head of the campaign committee (which business he has managed to conduct for the past two years in connection with his duties as a member of the state board of public works) by Major McKinley, and naturally thinks he should have something to say about the manner of conducting the campaign.

Mr. Squire, as president of the league, moved next door to the headquarters of the state committee and proceeded to open out business and run a little campaign of his own. It is a kind of side issue, largely conducted in the personal account of President Squire, who succeeded in having himself booked for commissioner of railroads and telegraphs, in the event of McKinley's election.

In some manner, the details of which are not yet made public, President Squire trespassed on Chairman Hahn's territory and the result is a very large-sized family row between the two nominal heads of the two republican organizations.

According to reports the gentlemen had a very animated meeting, during which each made free use of adjectives and neither eschewed personalities.

Mr. Hahn did not propose to have his prerogatives as chairman usurped by an individual not even a member of the committee, while Mr. Squire was very positive that, as president of the state league he had some rights that the chairman was bound to respect.

The two luminaries in the cause of McKinley and the tin tariff failed to harmonize on the points at difference, and they agreed to disagree.

It is now stated that the heads of the two organizations have a "go between" that they use when desiring to communicate with each other.

The presumption of President Squire in coming to Columbus and opening up campaign headquarters has been a subject of criticism among many republicans ever since it was announced that he intended to locate here.

Just what connection he has with the committee or the necessity for the party having two state organizations to conduct the same campaign has been a mystery to some of the old leaders, and they conclude that the league arrangement is a neat scheme to boost James Boyle, ex-president, and W. I. Squire, present president, into office, provided always, that McKinley is elected.

The pins are set in the direction of the private secretaryship for Boyle and the railroad commissionership for Squire. The fight between the chairman and the president may upset the arrangements fixed up by the league managers. It is known that many of the old-timers are demanding that the league be relegated to the back-ground.

It is understood that the first differences between Hahn and Squire arose over the failure of the former to call the executive committee together.

The chairman apparently does not desire a meeting of the committee for reasons best known to himself, while the league manager is very anxious that one be held.

The significance attaching to this particular difference is found in the composition of the committee. With the exception of Chairman Hahn and one or two others, the members are all Foraker men, and the Sherman following are opposed to a meeting, preferring to let their chairman manipulate the campaign and shell out the boodle.

It is safe to predict, however, that a meeting will soon be called, if not by the chairman, then by some other authority, and Mr. Hahn may soon find his political wings clipped by the Foraker shears.

THE WAR IN CHILI

Reported To-Day to Have Come to an End.

Balmaceda Defeated and Insurgents in Control.

The Decisive Battle Was Fought Yesterday.

Foreign Nation Now in Control of Valparaiso.

History of an Ancient City Whose Importance is Second Only to San Francisco on the Pacific Coast.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Acting Secretary of State Wharton has received the following cablegram from Col. Wm. B. McCreery, United States consul at Valparaiso dated yesterday:

"Battle fought near this city this morning. Government forces badly beaten. Heavy loss on both sides. City surrendered to the hands of the opposition, but is in the hands of admirals of the American, German, French and English fleets for good order. No communication with Santiago. Opposition forces now entering the city."

This is the first information received by the state department from its representatives in Chili relative to the state of affairs there for some time, excepting a meager cipher dispatch received yesterday morning from Minister Egan, dated yesterday at Santiago, stating that a small fight had taken place near that place Thursday morning, and the decisive battle would probaby be fought Friday morning.

Mr. Wharton said that Santiago had been cut off from telegraphic communication with the outside world, the wires probably being in the hands of the insurgents, or Minister Egan would have communicated with the department, giving more of the particulars of the situation.

As Valparaiso is only 30 miles from Santiago it is expected that the consul will soon be able to communicate with Minister Egan.

Mr. Wharton declined to say what action would be taken by this government or what instructions would be sent to Minister Egan, but he said that nothing would be done until further news had been received by the department.

Nothing further has been received at the Navy department from Admiral Brown, commanding the United States naval forces in Chilian waters, but as the dispatch from Valparaiso stated that the American admiral with the naval commanders of foreign nations were preserving order, it is presumed the American ships must have reached the scene of action, as admiral in his last communication to the department, dated Coquimbo, received yesterday, said he would soon sail for Valparaiso if he deemed his presence there necessary. The Baltimore and San Francisco are the ships under his command.

Mr. Lacano, the Chilian miniter, said later that news had been received by him from Chili since yesterday stating that a battle had been fought on the 25th, in which the government forces were victorious. The minister thinks the reason he has heard nothing from Santiago in regard to the reported fight is because of the seizure and censorship, probably, of the cable and telegraph lines by the insurgents, and he can account for it in no other way, believing he would, if possible, have been informed immediately of the result of the encounter by the opposing forces.

While the minister declined to say whether he placed credence in the reports of Balmaceda's fall, it was apparent by his demeanor that he was not very hopeful of receiving good news and seemed not over sanguine that the government had not been defeated.

"All is possible in war," he said, "and I can't understand how the situation could have so suddenly changed since my dispatch yesterday announcing victory, though it may be so." Further than this the minister declined to speak.

Mr. Julio M. Foster, who is assisting the congressional envoys in this city, received the following dispatch dated at New York:

"Balmaceda is defeated. Valparaiso in our power. Viva Chili."

The sender is Richard Trumbull, one of the congressional agents who is now under indictment for violation of the neutrality laws in connection with the equipment of the Itata. The dispatch gave great comfort to the congressional partisans here, and Mr. Foster did not attempt to conceal his satisfaction.

An hour after the dispatch from Mr. Trumbull came to hand the following dispatch from Mr. Veil, the confidential agent of the insurgent party at Lima, Peru, dated to-day and addressed to Mr. Pedro Montt, the principal congressional envoy in this city, was received at the headquarters of the party here:

"Triumph complete. Valparaiso surrendered."

NO ADDITIONAL NEWS.

The State Department Report Generally Believed to Be True.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The representatives of the Chilian insurgent party here have received no additional information up to 10 o'clock this morning.

Senor Montt, the representative of the insurgent party arrived here this morning after an absence of several weeks and was kept busy receiving the congratulations of friends and answering telegrams.

During his absence he was kept posted on affairs in Chili by Mr. Foster. He did not rely much upon the various newspaper reports, he said, as they were so conflicting, but was overjoyed when the official dispatch was received by the state department announcing the victory of the insurgents.

What action he will take for recognition by the United States government could not be learned, but he will probably determine to-day what course to pursue in this direction.

REPORT CONFIRMED.

There Seems to Be No Doubt But What Balmaceda Is Beaten

New York, August 29.—A despatch was received this morning by Wm. R. Grace & Co., from their Valparaiso house fully confirming the news of Balmaceda's utter rout. It was sent at 8 o'clock last night and is as follows:

"Complete victory for the opposition. All is well."

The firm are of the opinion that the insurgent victory and the fall of Valparaiso is equivalent to the overthrow of the Balmaceda government.

Chilian consul general Flint takes a different view of the matter and in an interview with a reporter of the United Press said the result does not necessarily end the war.

The government forces, he said, will now fall back to Santiago and the troops of both the northern and southern divisions will be recalled to the defense of that city which will transfer the entire conflict to the land as the fleet of the insurgents would be of no value at Santiago.

Balmaceda would then have a larger army than his opponents, providing he has prestige enough to retain his army under the government standard. Whether he will be able to do this or not seems a matter of doubt in the consul general's mind. He has thus far received no further advices since the 27th.

THE CITY OF VALPARAISO

The Second Largest Port on the Pacific.

Valparaiso is the second city of Chili and, excepting San Francisco, the largest port on the Pacific shore of the new world. It is situated on a large bay in the Pacific, and is 90 miles distant from Santiago, the capital of Chili.

The bay is semicircular in form, and is capable of accommodating a very large fleet. It is well sheltered on the east, south and west, but is entirely open toward the north, and during the prevalence of northerly winds shipping is much exposed. The city has a most picturesque location. The part properly called the port is built on the lower slopes of a range of lofty heights which encircle the bay and on a narrow beach widened here and there by deep cuttings into these steep acclivities.

The Almendral, formerly a rural suburb, is now the most populous and active part of the town. Here the base of the hills is farther removed from the sea than it is in the port, and the intervening space being level, forms excellent building ground.

The environs of the city have many fine gardens and villas. It has many excellent public buildings, including the custims house, market houses, Masonic temple, police barracks, government house, public warehouses, postoffice, city hall, theater convents, hospitals and many beautiful churches.

There is a large foreign population in Valparaiso, including English, Germans, French and Americans, and it is for their protection that foreign fleets have taken control of the city. Valparaiso is the greatest commercial port of the Pacific slope of South America. It has an import trade of $25,000,000 per year and exports some $15,000,000. The city is lit with gas, is well paved, and has street cars, steam fire engines and public libraries.

In the colonial days Valparaiso also was an unimportant city, but it grew rapidly after independence was declared. It now has something over 100,000 people.

It has been stated that the foreign population of Valparaiso has a better position and greater influence than in any other city of the South American seaboard.

The city is the capital of the Chilian province of the same name, which now falls probably wholly under control of the insurgent forces.

During the Chilian war with Spain in 1864-7 the port of Valparaiso was blockaded by the Spanish fleet and in March, 1866, the city was bombarded. This was the most notable event of the Spanish-Chilian war. The bombardment continued for three hours and a quarter. Not an opposing shot was fired in defense of the city. With the means at their command it was useless for the Chilians to resist the attack. The destruction of property was immense. The warehouses, containing millions of dollars of foreign merchandise, were almost totally demolished.

All the public buildings were ruined and a large part of the city burned. The losses in the bombardment were about $10,000,000. Owing to the fact that nearly all the inhabitants had left the city the number of killed and wounded was comparatively small. A month later the Spanish fleet left Chilian waters. This was the only important historical event in Valparaiso history until yesterday's surrender.

BAD PLACE FOR CARTRIDGES

Some Fireworks Not on the Program.

A Boy's Pocket Exploded With Serious Results While His Mother Was Chastising Him.

Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—Thursday afternoon a boy named Ray Lloyd, aged 12 years, living at Salina, met with a peculiar accident.

He had a number of boxes of toy pistol caps in his pocket and started home. His mother was waiting to punish him for some act of disobedience, which she at once proceeded to do.

While chastising him she struck him across the pocket where the caps were. An explosion followed, and when the smoke cleared away the boy stood there without a stitch of clothing on him, and with his hips and sides burned in a horrible manner.

SENECA REPUBLICANS.

They are Holding a Convention to-day.

None of the Much Boasted Enthusiasm is Found to be on Tap at Tiffin.

Tiffin, O., Aug. 29.—(Special)—The republican county convention assembled at the city hall at 10 o'clock this morning and effected an organization.

Candor compells the confession that the body, as a convention of a great and enthusiastic party, destined to sweep the state, is conspicuous and noteworthy only as a failure.

There are not more than 125 persons present, including spectators and reporters, and the proceedings are as dull and listless as those of a rural Sunday school.

Several townships are wholly unrepresented.

There is absolutely none of the enthusiasm which is said to have been aroused throughout the state.

THE WEST INDIES.

Is the Treaty of Little Value to the States?

Canadian Goods Will Enter the Islands Free of Duty for Ten Months.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 29.—Official information has been received by the board of trade that the Spanish government has admitted the contention of the British government that, pending the expiring of the treaty of 1886, in July, 1892, the products of Canada will be admitted into Cuba and Porto Rico upon the same terms as imports from the United States.

In other words, that while the treaty of reciprocity with the United States and the Spanish West Indies goes into effect on Monday, the Americans will not derive any special advantage therefrom for the ensuing ten months, during which period all Canadian imports will be admitted into the Spanish West Indies free.

TOLEDO BOYS ARE IN IT.

Hodge and Suydam Win at Cincinnati.

The Prettiest Game Ever Played in Ohio--They Play the Coldhams for the Championship To-day.

Toledo was decidedly in it at the Ohio state tennis tournament at Cincinnati yesterday when Dodge and Suydam of this city defeated Beckwith and Worthington, the crack team from Cleveland who had been booked for first place in the gentlemen's doubles. The Cincinnati Enquirer in describing the second round says:

The Toledo team started in right away and played the same phenomenal game which it had put up in the first part of the match. Worthington played the same steady game which he had kept up during the whole tournament, but Beckwith was a little unsteady. Showing a lamentable want of practice. Hodge and Suydam played perfectly together and made return after return that was simply marvelous. Hodge lobbed beautifully and played some splendid Lawfords, while Suydam played the alleys for all they were worth.

Both the Toledo men have terrific serves and have probably won more aces on their serves than all the other men in the tournament. Beckwith and Worthington volleyed splendidly, keeping up rally after rally, but these were generally ended by a quick stroke down the alley made by either Hodge or Suydam. Hodge and Suydam got a big lead, running the score up to 5—1. Then the Cleveland men took a brace, but it was too late, as nothing could be done against the wonderful playing of the Toledo team. The set was won by Hodge and Suydam, 6—2. Everyone who saw the match says that it was by far the prettiest tennis of the present tournament, and indeed of any tournament ever held in Ohio. When the Coldhams telegraphed that they would be down to defend their title of champions of Ohio in doubles, they very probably did not suspect that their own townsmen would be the challengers. It was indeed a famous victory, and will go down in the tennis annals as one of the great matches of the Ohio tournaments, ranking with the defeat of the Coldnams by Dr. Carson and Will Herron in 1889, and with the victory of T. S. Beckwith over W. W. Coldham in 1890.

In the final round the Toledo boys defeated Pond and Simmonds, of Dayton, 6-3, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. They will play the Coldhams this afternoon.

Mr. Suydam was elected secretary of the Ohio State Tennis association at last evening's meeting.

The Toledo boys will be given a big reception on their return to the city.

MURDERED BY ITALIANS.

A Farmer Beaten and Stabbed to Death.

Much Excitement and Threats are Made That There Will Be a Lynching Before Long.

Ashbury Park, N. J., Aug. 29.—Thos. Davean, aged 25, a farmer living three miles out of Redbank, was murdered by a gang of Italians late last night.

Davean had been to town to dispose of a load of truck and on his return, accompanied by a man named John Simpson, stopped at an Italian colony on the outskirts of the town.

A quarrel arose over the price of a load of manure when the Italians set upon Davean and beat and stabbed him to death.

Simpson fled for his life but was overtaken by the Italians who attempted to kill him.

Simpson defended himself with a club and the Italians made off.

There is great indignation expressed here and lynching is freely talked of.

Beaten in Scotland.

Fall, River, Mass., Aug. 29.—A cable from Glasgow says the American football team which left this country three weeks ago, has been beaten in Scotland by the Third Lanark rifle volunteer team.

One of the London street car companies has in use an automatic "starter." Two powerful spiral springs fastened to the front axle are wound up through being applied for the car's stoppage, so that when it is desired to go on again they are capable of starting it. The device effects a tremendous saving and is mercy to horses.

He is Spoiling Some Republican Schemes.

May Have the War Portfolio Given Him

To Keep Him from Running for United States Senator — A String to the Proctor Appointment.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Aug. 29.—The appointment of Secretary Proctor to succeed George F. Edmunds as the representative of the Green Mountain state in the United States senate has not met with any great degree of enthusiasm here.

Mr. Proctor would probably be dismayed could he know some of the unkind things that the good people of the town are saying about him.

Gov. Page's peculiar letter is also severely criticized. Its tenor is likened to a literary slap in the face. He told the present secretary of war that he will appoint him in November, if it becomes necessary to appoint anybody, which Vermonters say, ought to leave the good Mr. Proctor in considerable doubt as to his real status.

It had been decided to read the letter of promise at the exercises at Montpelier, but as it had already been given to the Vermont newspapers these plans were reversed at the last moment and the famous letter was not declaimed from a platform.

A reporter saw Gov. Page and asked him what his plans were. He very gravely said that he should run for the United States senate on the expiration of Edmunds' term. It had been his ambition, he said, to become a senator of the United States, and as he had no wish to be Governor again he hoped to be able to gratify it.

It is learned from sources which can't be questioned that Gov. Page's fancy was decided long before he would consent to appoint Proctor to the senate. It was one of the conditions of that appointment, it is alleged, that Page should receive the portfolio of war. He refused to accede to President Harrison's wishes, it is declared on high authority, until it was promised him.

Now Page is about the last man in Vermont whom Harrison, if left to choose, would have selected to assume the honors of the war secretaryship. Page has no record. When the civil war broke out Page went over the border to Canada. Anything else that was within reason was offered to Page, but upon the bended knees of the whole administration he was besought not to ask for the headship of the department of war; but Gov. Page, it is said, absolutely refused to appoint a satisfactory successor to Edmunds unless his own wishes in the premises were considered; so that the situation now is that Carroll S. Page will receive the portfolio of war when Proctor steps out.

This information was given to-day by a politician who is in the secrets of the leaders, and who therefore don't wish his name used in this connection.

The scheme will be engineered by first offering the portfolio to General Veazy. He has already received his instructions and will decline to serve.

After this charming farce the president must needs again cast his eye over the sons of Vermont and declare that he feels none to be so well fitted to the honor as Carroll S. Page.

To-day the president will return to Cape May, and as he reviews the various receptions which have been accorded him in his tour through Vermont his reflection must be anything but pleasant.

It is a fact that while respectable crowds have cheered Mr. Harrison, the enthusiasm has not been what it was expected to be over the visit of the chief. Either Vermonters are very lazy or else they do not and cannot enthuse over Mr. Harrison. They stand around and stare at him, but they won't cheer him or throw up their hats for him.

THE BARGE DISASTER.

Coroner's Verdict Rendered This Morning.

The Barge Was Rotten and Should Never Have Carried a Human Cargo.

Cold Springs, L. I., Aug. 29.—The inquest in the case of the 13 victims of the excursion barge disaster, which occurred at this place on the afternoon of August 12, was concluded at a late hour last night.

The jury returned a verdict that the 13 passengers were killed by the falling of the roof of the barge and that the accident was due to the high winds, bad construction of the hurricane deck and the rotten condition of the masts.

Coroner Rodman said he did not know whether the county authorities would take any further action in the matter, and that if anything further is done it will be the duty of the district attorney of Suffolk county to do it. The company owning the barge will have to face many suits for damages.

SHERMAN AT THE HEAD.

He Captures the Franklin County Convention.

Not a Foraker Man Allowed a Place on the Ticket--Warm Times Expected.

Columbus, O., Aug. 29.—(Special)—The republicans held their county convention to-day, and the followers of Sherman, led by George Nash and Jacob Donaldson, secured entire control of all proceedings and nominated every person on the ticket.

Every one of the nominees is a warm friend of Sherman.

Following is the ticket:

Prosecutor—Ira Crum.
Representatives—C. C. Walcutt, Charles Marion and J. W. Everal.
Sheriff—Willam Gault.
Commissioner—J. B. Neal.
Recorder—H. P. Hume.
Infirmary director—Hugh Evans.
Coroner—Charles A. Link.

The last named was defeated at the democratic primaries.

Walcutt was nominated to catch the whisky vote.

Neal, for commissioner, was formerly governor of Idaho under President Hayes' administration.

Foraker's friends swear vengeance on both state and county ticket, and the democratic majority for state and county ticket will be 2,000.

THE DAYS OF SIXTY-FIVE.

Effort to Refresh Them in the Soldiers' Mind.

The Grand Review of that Year May Be Duplicated.

Now that Washington Has Secured the Meeting Its People are Laboring to Make Their Promises Good.

Washington, Aug. 29.—One by one the members of the executive committee having in charge the affairs of the city of Washington at Detroit in connection with the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic have returned home, and early next week a meeting will be held by this committee, at which time the whole situation will be canvassed.

Public sentiment has crystalized upon this matter, and the men who engineered the initial steps in this great matter to such successful ending will be called upon to carry out the work of the entertainment and give it their supervision. These men are the representatives of the leading businesses in the city, and have proved themselves the right persons in the right place.

Washington cannot afford, now that the entertainment of this mighty host of old soldiers depends upon them, to put the matter in inexperienced hands. The gentlemen of this committee have the benefit of their keen observation at Detroit, and return familiar with all the details necessary to care properly for a crowd such as will come to Washington.

While it will be necessary for this committee to have the hearty co-operation of every citizen, and the aid of many subcommittees, it appears to be the feeling that the men who have so far carried the burden should not be permitted to drop it at this time, when the city will need its greatest efforts.

The members of the committee have fully recovered from the fatigue of that week, many of them have enjoyed their annual vacation and each one is now ready to resume the work.

Some of the members of the committee have been quietly looking over the field and gathering up all the information they could. One thing that will be necessary and which is, perhaps, the most important, is the securing of a suitable hall for the meeting of the encampment and the banquet.

It is thought that the hall of the house of representatives can be had for the encampment and the senate chamber for the Women's Relief corps. With the desks removed and chairs substituted these two halls will be amply sufficient to accommodate these bodies, and the committee thinks there will be no trouble in securing them. In fact the old soldiers will be, after a fashion, the nation's guests, and it is believed the government, through the various departments, will do all it can to make the encampment a magnificent affair.

The pension office will be secured for the banquet hall, and this immense building, with its great galleries and high roof, will make a banquet-room never before equaled in this country. It will be a fitting place to spread that great feast before the representatives of the old soldiers in the building from which the government is daily sending aid to the soldiers.

When the encampment of 1892 meets in Washington the monument grounds and the White Lot will look like the camp of a vast army. It is the intention to have thousands of tents pitched on these grounds, where free quarters will be offered such of the old soldiers as want it. Everything here will be made comfortable, and the tents pitched on the dry ground will be reminders of the old days, but veritable palaces compared with the quarters occupied many a night in the days of '61 and '65.

A novel idea has been suggested for the parade. If carried out it would stir up the patriotism of the people more than the marching of the men as Grand Army posts, inspiring as that sight may be. It has been the custom at all these encampments to break the parade into divisions and throw into each division certain posts of the Grand Army, special states being grouped, and each disivision commanded by officers appointed for that purpose.

The idea that is suggested is that the grand review of 1865 be duplicated as nearly as possible. To do this the men from the variousposts throughout the country should be formed in line without regard to present G. A. R. organizations, but according to the regiments and commands to which they belonged at the close of the war. The same officers should be placed in command if they are living. A special effort should be made to have as many of these old commanders as possible.

If there should be but a dozen men here of one regiment, it should march as that regiment, headed by its officers, and forming part of the brigade to which it belonged. In this way the difference between 1865 and 1891 can be seen, and the people can see what time has done in killing off the soldiers who saved the country.

This scheme would also bring together old comrades from all parts of this country, and result in as much pleasure to the soldiers as it would to the civilians. It is thought the idea is practicable, and it will be considered by the committee and possibly recommended to the commander-in-chief who has control of the parade.

Another great drawback in the parades of the past have been the dropping out of line of thousands who could not endure the march or thousands more who never entered the line, owing to its great length. The parade here will extend only from the capitol to Washington Circle, about two miles, and every old soldier will be anxious to march over that ground and along Pennsylvania avenue. This will make the parade the most successful and the largest ever held since the grand review of 1865.

HOMES FOR NEGROES.

They Will Invade the Indian Lands.

Hundreds of Agents in the South Urging the Black Man to Go West and Grow Up.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 29.—A movement is on foot to colonize with negroes the Indian lands which are soon to be thrown open to general settlement.

The scheme has its origin in Langston City, the metropolis of the negro settlement not far from here. The agents, 850 in number, of the Langston Colonization society are now laboring with zeal among their brethren in the southern states to persuade them to come to the new country. Thousands of circulars have been sent out with the same object in view, and yesterday at a meeting of the association the following was adopted:

Resolved, That we notify our people, colored citizens of the south, to be here on the 10th of September, and that those who intend to drive through to the Indian country to start at once.

As a result of the work of the Langston agents in the southern states, hundreds of negroes have already gone to Langston and are being cared for by their colored friends until the time for the invasion arrives.

Many negroes are arriving daily, and by the time the lands are proclaimed open to settlement it is believed thousands of colored people will have arrived here to take part in the race for homes.

The Langston people believe the government owes them homes, and they intend to secure them at any price.

Most of the negroes are armed, and it is believed they will make an organized effort to exclude all but members of their race from settling claims, at least until each negro has found a home.

The organization is secret, and until yesterday their objects and plans have been known to none but themselves.

CHAT FROM FINDLAY.

Miscellaneous Gossip From the Brilliant City.

Findlay, Aug. 29.—(Special)—The suit of John Conway, ex-superintendent of the city crematory, against the city, was decided in Justice Aford's court yesterday. The jury awarded Conway $18.31, the same amount allowed by the finance committee of the city council. Conway sued for $200.

Union I. O. O. F. Picnic.

The members of the three linked fraternity of this county are making extensive preparation for their first annual picnic to be held at the old fair grounds on Thursday, September 3. Grand Master Cable is expected to be present and deliver an address, besides a number of local speakers. A grand dinner will also be one of the leading features. There are about eight I. O. O. F. lodges in the county and the attendance promises to be very large.

Cruelly Assaulted.

Mrs. Ida Lewis was cruelly assaulted in her own dooryard last evening by a man she recognized as Sam Fioriel, a glassworker. She was just returning from the city and was waylaid by the scoundrel who choked her and struck with the butt end of his revolver. Her cries brought her husband to her assistance, but the villian ran off in the darkness and escaped. This is the second time Mrs. Lewis has been abused by Fioriel. No cause can be given for his actions as she claims she never spoke to the man.

FOUGHT FOR HER LIFE.

A Woman's Battle With a Tramp—The Defeated Ruffian Captured.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Catherine Strohacker, of Bunker Hill, this morning was met at her door by a burly tramp, who tried to assault her. He asked for a drink of water, which was given him. He returned within half an hour and attacked the woman. Though alone in the house with a little daughter she made a bold fight, and the fellow finally gave up and fled.

A posse, headed by D. W. Stoddard and his son, followed the fellow into the woods and caught him hiding in a clump of bushes. He was brought to the police station here, where he gave the name of Patrick Galvin.

A CONTRACT LABOR CASE.

Suit Commenced Against W. F. Vleit & Co.

The Firm Inserted Advertisements in Canadian Papers to Induce Men to Come Over.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Superintendant Owen to-day directed that suit be entered against W. F. Vliet, of Cleveland, O., for violation of the alien contract law in publishing in foreign papers advertising for contract laborers to come to the United States. In the case in point Mr. Vliet inserted advertisements in several Canadian newspapers inviting laborers to come to Cleveland and promising work to those who would come. The evidence in the case has been collected by treasury agents and laid before Allen T. Brinsmade, United States district attorney for the northern district of Ohio with the request that he institute suit at once against Mr. Vliet. This is the first case of the kind in which suit was ever entered by the United States.

THE MUSGRAVE MYSTERY.

It Deepens With Every Hour of Investigation.

Ascertained That His Life Was Insured.

The People Openly Assert That the Bones Found in the Hut Were Those of Another Man.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 29.—Suspicion now strongly points to Charles M. Trout, one of Musgrave's boon companions and the last man who is known to have seen Musgrave at the log cabin last Sunday night, with knowing all about the burning of the cabin and the whereabouts of Musgrave, if that daring swindler is alive and the charred remains still at police headquarters are those of somebody else.

Trout is a young real estate dealer of this city who followed Musgrave's varying fortunes unceasingly and who has been in close touch with him ever since his flight from Terre Haute. Trout's revised statement about the manner in which Musgrave came here last night varied so greatly from what he first said, that suspicion was naturally directed toward him.

He first said Musgrave came down alone from Hillsdale on the railroad that night at 9:50 o'clock, and got off at the Bronson house, where he met him. He has testified before the coroner that Musgrave and himself came down from Hillsdale in the morning; that they got off at Otter Creek Junction and walked across the prairie three miles to see whether they could get a cabin to occupy, and that they then rowed in a boat to Terre Haute, a distance of 12 miles by water, whereupon they went to the Bronson house.

The information from Chicago to-day that Musgrave had $10,000 accident insurance in the United States Mutual, $5,000 of which he took nine months ago, and the other $5,000 only on August 5, confirms the belief of the police officials that this is a desperate scheme of the fugitive not only to destroy his identity, but also to defraud the insurance companies.

Farmers in the vicinity of the burned cabin say they struck the trail of a man apparently running from the cabin into Ward's cornfield, where the person seemed to turn around and look back in the direction of the cabin.

Then the tracks were traced in a circuitous direction to a point near the river, where it appeared the person had gotten into a buggy.

Of course this is largely conjecture, but this story finds many believers.

Where the corpse or skeleton that was burned to a crisp was procured, if such was the case, still remains a mystery, but the big brown valise that visitors to the hut say Musgrave had is supposed to have something to do with it.

The sentiment is surprisingly universal that Musgrave is still alive and that one of the most daring deceptions ever practiced in the west has been attempted. A detective from the United States Mutual Accident association will be here to probe the mystery to the bottom.

WESTERN WATER WAYS.

A Call Issued for Another Convention.

It Will Be Held In Evansville the Middle of October and Will Be Largely Attended.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 29.—The Hon. D. B. Wood, chairman of the executive committee on the improvement of the western waterways, by authority in him vested by the Cincinnati convention, held in September, 1889, issued a call for a convention of the people interested in the improvement of the western waterways, to be held in Evansville, Ind., on Wednesday and Thursday, October 14 and 15, 1891.

At this convention members of congress, of state legislatures, governors of states and mayors of cities and all commercial, trade, manufacturing, mechanical, laboring, agricultural, river and sea-going vessel organizations of the states of Missouri, Ohio and Mississippi valleys are requested witout further notice to appoint and send delegates (number not limited) to the convention.

Communications in reference to the above should be addressed to John W. Bryant, secretary, postoffice box 749, New Orleans.

PAYNE'S CASE SETTLED.

Reinstated by the National Meeting.

He Was Censured for His Financial Deeds and His Title Taken Away From Him.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 29.—The commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans settled the long-standing question of Past Commander-in-Chief Walter F. Payne's status.

He was court martialed and expelled for misappropriation of funds. The committee of review reported that he was absolutely innocent of any intention to defraud the order, but had, under mistaken judgment, wrongfully invested the funds. It recommended that the decree of expulsion be rescinded and that Payne be censured.

There was a bitter fight over the report, but it was finally substantially adopted with the addition that Payne be deprived of his rank as past commander-in-chief. Judge John P. Rea, of this city, appeared as his counsel. Payne is from Fostoria, O.

TREASURY RULING.

The Vermillion Red Case Settled by the Department.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Solicitor Hepburn has rendered a decision which has been approved by the treasury department in the case of R. F. Downing & Co., of New York, on appeal against the collector at New York on an importation of vermillion red.

On May 27 last the board of general appraisers to whom the case was appealed from the collector held "that the entry should be reliquidated and the difference between the amount assessed by the collector, viz: 12 cents a pound and 25 per cent. ad valorem should be refunded to the importers."

After the lapse of 30 days, within which an appeal might be taken to the circuit court, the collector took exception to the form of protest, and the board of general appraisers reversed its former decision. Downing & Co. claimed this could not be done, and the treasury department sustains them.

The treasury department has decided to appeal the case involving duties on certain antiquities imported by Mr. Robert Garrett to the United States supreme court.

The board of general appraisers at New York and the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania decided in favor of Mr. Garrett, holding that one article constituted "antiquities."

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache Heart-burn Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

How Some of Toledo's Lawyers Selected

Their Profession and Entered on a Career for Fame and Wealth.

Every man who has accumulated worldly possessions to any considerable extent, or trained himself into o profession had to make a start.

With the vast number of men in business and professional life, there must be many interesting stories connected with the first step taken in a chosen profession or mercantile pursuit.

A Bee in his ramblings the other day had a pleasant chat with a few of the younger members of the Lucas county bar on this subject, and the result is given below:

L. G. Richardson.

"How did I come to enter into the practice of law? Well, that's somewhat of a sticker for me." This reply came from L. G. Richardson in response to a question by a Bee. "Well, I never stopped to think just why I did study law. I just naturally drifted into it from the time I was old enough to play 'hookey' from school until I was admitted to the bar. I always wanted to be a lawyer; in fact, never thought of adopting any other profession or business. My parents furnished me with the means to a liberal education, and when the time came I turned to law as a matter of course, without giving the subject any consideration. That was the profession I was to adopt, and that was all there was to it. After finishing my education I came west and was settled in Detroit with Judge Marsten. I was admitted to the bar in that state, in 1883, when I was 21 years of age. In 1886 I struck out for myself and landed in Toledo, and here I am, with nothing to regret, happy and content."

O. S. Brumback.

"I used to argue the point with my playfellows, and was always ready for debate in school. I always wanted to be a lawyer and never had any desire to take up any other business. I was born in Delaware county, December 2, 1855. In 1861 my parents moved to Van Wert, where I entered the public schools. At the age of 15 I took up a college course at the University of Wooster, where I completed the sophomore year. The following year I went to Princeton college and entered the Junior class. I graduated in 1877, and returned home where I read law with Col. I. N. Alexander, now deceased. I afterwards took a course in the law department of the University of Michigan, and graduated from there in 1879. Immediately after being admitted to the bar, I located in Toledo, and am highly satisfied with the success I have attained."

Parks Hone.

"Punk, whatever induced you to become a lawyer?"

This to Parks Hone.

"For the money that is in it, in the first place. Secondly, it is an independent life, with vast opportunities for honorable achievements. When I was a boy I used to attend court and listened with interest to the lawyers' arguments. I knew there was money to be made in the practice of law and concluded to become a lawyer. I was born in Rice towns ip, Sandusky county, in 1861. After graduating from the public schools in this city I entered the Ann Arbor law school, from where I graduated in 1879. Coming home I was admitted to the bar July 16, 1879. In 1888 I went into the mail service. I worked at that until December 1, 1888, when I went to pushing the pencil, the same as you do, on the Commercial. The following May I quit the newspaper business and took up the practice of law, forming a partnership with Mr. Merrill, and here I am."

George B. Orwig.

"I always wanted to be a lawyer," said George B. Orwig, "and I never had any other ambition from the time I was old enough to give such matter any consideration. They say everybody has a calling, and when I was a little shaver and heard older folks talk about such things I used to declare that I was going to be a lawyer.

"What always bothered me was how to get into the profession. I was born down here at Pemberville, but my parents moved from there when I was a little rat, and settled at Bellevue, this state. It was there I received my common school education. My father was a physician and naturally wanted me to adopt that profession. While I was attending school I purchased a Blackstone, and would read that when I had a little leisure. I attempted the study of medicine for the reason that my advantages in that respect were superior, and I couldn't see my way clear to the study of law. I studied medicine just two months, when I gave it up, determined to gain the profession of law or nothing, and went to work with that object in view. I taught school until I saved enough money to enter college at Delaware and once I got started everything went lovely, and from that day to this I paid my own way, and have no reason to regret the step I took."

James H. Southard.

"I always wanted to be a lawyer because of the unbounded opportunity to work ahead," said James H. Southard.

"Then, I knew there was plenty of money to be made in the profession. I was born in Lucas county and, like all illustrious men, was raised on a farm. My early education was attained in a country school, and I afterwards attended school in Toledo. It wasn't so easy to secure an education those days, you may believe. Well, after I had completed my common school education, I resolved to be a lawyer, if such a thing were possible. Of course I thought as every student does, that I had a special calling to the profession. Accordingly, to this end I entered upon the study of law at the Cornell university, from which institution Igraduated in 1874. In 1877 I was admitted to the practice of law, and am all right, thank you."

H. F. Shunk.

"A mere trifle will often change a man's whole career," remarked Hugh F. Shunk, as he gazed out of the window of his cozy office in the Produce Exchange building. "Just such a trifle as I speak of changed the course of my life and drifted me into the profession. I was raised and educated in Toledo, and after leaving the High school I went to college. I always was ambitious to make my own way in the world honorably, and was determined to get an education. After that I wasn't so particular what pursuit in life I adopted. Well, while I was at college I became discouraged, as any student will, at times. I felt that I wanted to quit college and begin life for myself. I wrote my father to secure a position in some mercantile pursuit for me. Father talked the matter over with a friend of his who is a big merchant in the city. This merchant told my father that he might as well take me out of college for all the good I would do there or anywhere else. Father wrote me just what the merchant said, and perhaps I wasn't mad. I at once realized that I was about to throw away the opportunity of a life time, and I went to work in earnest. After finishing my college course, I came home, studied law, and was admitted to the bar. I thank that merchant to this day for bringing me to my senses."

ON LOCAL RAILROADS.

The Lumber Rates from Toledo.

Meeting of the Middle States Lumber Association -- Excursion Rates --Other Matters.

Yesterday the Bee published an article stating that Toledo lumber dealers had requested that a 9-cent rate be made from this city to Pittsburg points, inasmuch as roads from the Saginaw had announced a through rate, the proportion of which from Toledo would be 9 cents. The Bee also stated that a meeting would soon be held and that the rate from Toledo would doubtless be reduced.

The young gentleman who skirmishes for railroad news on the Commercial, because he didn't happen to know anything about the matter, comes out with an article headed "A Little Premature," and goes on to say that anyway a drop in rates from Toledo and other points would necessarily follow after the Grand Rapids rates go into effect September 1, inferring that the Bee's statement about requests and meetings was all twaddle.

The Bee prints news, and when the Commercial reporter wants to hash up railroad items he can gamble on the authenticity of anything he sees in the Bee. The reduction has been asked for and will no doubt be made, but it won't result as a national consequence. A meeting will have to be held and it will have to be authorized. The only thing that follows as a national consequence is that the proposition from Toledo of the through rate from the Saginaw valley will be reduced. The regular rate from this city goes on until doomsday unless changed by the authorities.

Middle States Lumber Association.

Toledo members of the Middle States Lumber association received notice today that a meeting of the executive committee of the association would be held at Cincinnati Monday, to consider rates to the Pittsburg territory.

New Wire to Toledo.

A new wire to Toledo was placed in service yesterday by the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad, connecting the office of General Superintendent Rockwell with the docks in this city, and in connection with the line from Pomeroy and Gallipolis, making a through line from the lake to the river through the office. This improvement will greatly expedite business over the Toledo division.

To Ohio UPoints.

Toledo passenger men were notified of the following rates authorized by the Central Traffic association at one and one-third fares for the round trip:

East Ohio Annual Conference M. E. church, Akron, O., September 18-22.

Carriage Builders National association at Cincinnati, October 20-22.

Cinders Here and There.

Chas. W. Tomlison, formerly with the B. & O. in this city but now of Cincinnati, was in town yesterday.

W. H. Gregor, formerly of the Michigan Central at Toledo but recently general traveling passenger agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio, has been transferred to other duties and U. L. Truitt has been appointed a T. P. A.

The Toledo general passenger agents who will attend the meeting of the American Association of G. P. A.'s at Old Point Comfort, Va., will ride from Cincinnati over the Chesapeake & Ohio on the finest train ever put together in this country. The Toledo members were notified to-day that the Pullmans were getting the train ready.

THE JUNE COLLECTION

Distributed to the Various Funds in City and County.

The auditor of state's O. K. to the June settlement of taxes arrived to-day. The total collection is $651,508.81, which has been distributed as follows:

The eighth semi-annual financial statement of the People's Savings, Loan & Building Co., of Toledo, found in another column of this issue, shows assets of almost three-quarters of a million, and its more than twenty-one thousand dollars of interest and dividends credited and disbursed to its depositors for the last half year is, perhaps, the largest aggregate of earnings for one-half year ever credited and distributed to depositors by any financial mushroom in Northwester Ohio.

Miss Grace Baldwin will sing with the choir of the Central Congregational church to-morrow.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

Ivorine Not In It.

Ivorine was again beaten at Bellevue yesterday by Geo. H. Ketcham's mare Lucy B. At Vienna Ivorine was not in it with Charley Friel, and the boast of her owner that she could run away from Ketcham's horse was not realized. He was a very sick man yesterday when the mare was distanced in a race not at all fast.

A Correction.

In an article on the political situation in the Bee yesterday an inexcusable, although unintentional blunder was made in he statement that a dicker had been made between "Griffin and Eli" (Burdo). The absurdity of Mr. Burdo entering into a scheme whereby he was to lose his position was apparent. The word "Eli" should have been "Emmick."

Close Call.

Attorney M. G. Block has just returned from a brief business trip to St. Louis. He reports that the train on which he returned had a narrow escape from a terrible wreck. About 20 miles this side of St. Louis a car had been left on a siding too close to the main track. The express train scraped it and the fireman was instantly killed, but the cars were not derailed.

Unprovoked Assault and Battery.

John Cramer was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to the workhouse for 15 days for assaulting one Charles Newbirt, 1867 Superior street, on the night of the 26th. Cramer is one of the notorious Cramer gang, that for a long time terrorized the residents of the North Side last fall. Newbirt was very badly beaten and bruised about the head, and says that the assault was entirely unprovoked.

Elopers Captured in Toledo.

On the arrival of the Idlewild last evening Officers O'Brien and Langel arrested A. E. Varnie and Jennie Wooley, on word from Detroit. Varnie is a married man and has been paying attention to Miss Wooley, the escapade culminating in an elopement yesterday. Both were taken to the station. This afternoon Sheriff Boyles, of Jackson, Mich., put in an appearance and escorted the loving twain to the Wolverine state.

Birmingham Christian Endeavor Society.

Service will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the room at the corner of Front street and Paine avenue, opposite the new malleable iron works, instead of the old Collins brick house as formerly. Rev. George Candee, of the La Grange Street Congregational church, will preach. On Tuesday evening the weekly prayer meeting of the Christian Endeavor society will be held at the same place. Topic: "The Parting of the Two Ways," John 7:40-44, John 11:45-46, John 7:12, John 6:66. All are cordially invited to attend.

Grabbed O. Y. C. Nickels.

Some rascal or rascals picked the lock of the pool box in the Ohio Yacht club rooms within the past few days and abstracted some small change amounting to about $2.50. It has been the custom of the members of the club after playing a game to deposit a nickel in the box. The proceeds of the table were used to pay for it. Commodore Ketcham having guaranteed the amount, and the club in turn guaranteed a reimbursement under this system. Secretary Gunckel made the discovery yesterday and was much concerned to find that the guilty party is suspected no one, but an investigation will be made and the culprit will be severely punished.

Street Railway Extension Approved.

The council committee on railroads met last night for consideration of the ordinance granting to the Robison Street Railway company the right to extend its tracks on Muiberry street, Spring street and Stickney avenue. This is the third time this ordinance has been before the committee, being referred the last time at the instance of the railway employes who wanted an amendment attached prohibiting the company from employing out-of-town men on its road. The employes were not present, however, at the meeting last night, and the ordinance was reapproved without change.

The matter of passing legislation requiring the street railway companies to employ none but Toledo men was discussed briefly, but the gentlemen on the committee were of the opinion that if anything of the kind was done it should be in a separate ordinance.

Ruling as to Banking Institutions.

Secretary of State Dan Ryan yesterday ruled that building and loan associations cannot become savings and loan associations. The Merchants' and Clerks savings institution of Toledo, chartered under the building and loan association law of 1868, has been transacting business thereunder ever since, and had presented for record in the office of the secretary of state, under section 3811 of the revised statutes, a certificate in which they proposed to accept the provisions of law relating to the management and conduct of saving and loan associations and to operate hereafter thereunder. The secretary of state refused to file the certificate for the reason as stated by him, that section 3811 has reference to savings and loan associations and not the companies incorporated under the building and loan association law. Mr. Richard Waite appealed to Attorney General Watson. This official thought it was a question for the supreme court, and would not interfere with Mr. Ryan's ruling. Should the Toledo bank's proposal prevail, all the building and loan associations in Ohio could become banking associations.

First Union, W. C. T. U.

The First Union, W. C. T. U. met yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Southland, on Adams street. President Mrs. C. M. Dickenson presided, and there was a good attendance. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. J. W. Hiett.

It was decided to engage Miss Florence Balgarnie, of London, England, to lecture under the auspices of the Union on September 4. Her subject will be "Women in Public Life." A committee with Mrs. Vincent Hamilton as chairman, will make the arrangements for the lecture.

The coming state convention was also a topic of discussion, and Mrs. J. W. Hiett and Mrs. S. E. Turner were appointed to superintend the noonday lunch on the day it is in charge of this Union.

Mrs. M. H. Davis and Mrs. Southard were appointed a committee to look for permanent headquarters. The date of holding the annual meeting was changed from February to September 5.

I. O. G. T. Notes.

Mrs. J. C. Stone lectures in Mungen August 29 and 30, and in the city, at Lagrange Street mission, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 31, September 1 and 2. From here she goes to Maumee and speaks there September 3, 4 and 5, which closes her engagement in the Fifth district. She is one of the most entertaining and interesting speakers in the temperance work. All meetings are free, and every body is invited to attend.

Beacon Light lodge, No. 105, gives a moonlight excursion on the steamer Pastime, Tuesday evening, September 1, and it goes without saying that everybody will have a pleasant time, as the members of the Beacon Light are hustlers and have built up the lodge from the smallest lodge in the Fifth district six months ago, to next to the largest, and expect to go to the top this quarter.

Ironville lodge is progressing nicely and bids fair to be one of the largest lodges.

About a dozen of the active good templars of Toledo will attend the session of grand lodge held in Circleville, October 7, and continuing three days.

Good reading for savings investors will be found in the eighth semi-annual financial statement of the People's Savings, Loan & Building Co. in another column of this issue. The People's is the company that has with such success introduced the German method of saving known in Toledo as the Nickel Savings Stamp System.

Sinking of the Farragut.

The tug Farragut is being repaired on Bowes' ways. When she was raised it was found that one of her planers had been started, which caused the leak. It is not known, however, what caused the accident. It is said that there are some sunken piles in the Lagrange street slip, and a swell from a passing steamer may have rounded the tug against one of these. She will be afloat by to-morrow.

Tugs in Collision.

The tug Doan collided with the tug Roy this morning off the foot of Jefferson street and the collision resulted in the whole stern of the Doan being knocked in while the big tug was not injured. The Doan left the dock and started out into the river at full speed. In trying to dodge the Minnie D, which was pulling on the stern of the City of Toledo, the Doan struck the Roy amidships. The Doan was then run on Goose Point to keep her from sinking.

CANADA'S WICKED RULERS,

Andre Senecal Makes Himself Scarce.

He Took Bribes to the Extent of $20,000 While Superintendent of Public Printing.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 29.—Andre Senecal, superintendent of the government printing bureau, has been dismissed. Senecal, who is charged with obtaining over $20,000 "commissions" or gifts from those who sold goods to him in his capacity as superintendent of the printing bureau, left for parts unknown when he learned that parliament had ordered him to appear before the public accounts committee for examination. When this fact became known the government summarily dismissed him.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, }
TOLEDO, O., Aug. 29. }

London wheat and corn markets weak and lower. Liverpool wheat weak and lower; corn quiet and lower.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,066,351 bu, compared with 282,348 bu on the same day last year.

Country scales and weights of grain—It has been ascertained by examination and tests at interior points, that scales that have not been tested for some time are giving the farmer's wagon more than is just. That such scales are balances before using is not sufficient. The machinery below, if examined by an expert, is frequently found to give inaccurate results. Such examinations should be frequently made.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 684,003 in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain at eight principal western points this week have been wheat 6,537,000 bus; corn 319,800 bus; oats 3,079,000 bus compared with wheat 1,902,000 bus, corn 2,450,000 bus; oats 3,030,000 in the corresponding week in 1890.

The exports of clearances this week are: Wheat, 3,606,000 bu, compared with 4,304,000 bu in previous week; corn, 258,000 bu, compared with 202,000 bu last week; oats, 192,000 bu and 60,000 bu previous week.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 406,539 bu of wheat and flour, to an aggregate of 475,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are dull and lower for wheat and corn.

The Decline in Wheat.

Early information concerning the deficient crops abroad induced prompt and early purchases all around the world. These purchases on our Atlantic and Pacific coast, were immense. Until a late date these purchases have been continued. It has been a great rush for food. The export movement of wheat has been large, and it is supposed that large sales for September are yet to be moved out. But it is becoming rather evident that new engagements in that line are considerably shortened. Only small sales, comparatively, have recently been reported, and this fact in connection with continued free receipts have been the factors for the decline in price. But we have not accumulated wheat up to last visible supply statement we had increased only 1,090,000 bu. We see no basis for solicitude. We may not maintain more than one dollar per bushel at the lake ports, for the present, but we think two events will follow a serious break. A decrease in receipts and a revival of export purchases. Winter wheat farmers have received a great deal of money and must feel easy as a class. The impecunious northwest farmer may want to have his turn at the crip, if he can get out of the grip of the alliances, but that wheat does not come on the market in the same promiscuous way as winter wheat. England will squat, or advance, as we do either. Don't get demoralized.

The markets for wheat and corn on this side of the ocean are again weak and lower for wheat, corn and rye. The points for depression are decreased exportation, and an increase in receipts of wheat. As an indication of the whole movement we note by our tables herein, in eight principal western points the receipts of wheat are 650,000 bus larger than previous week. English markets reported closing lower.

In New York August and September wheat closed 1c lower; August corn 2c lower; September, 1¼c lower. In Chicago September wheat closed 2¼c and December 1¾c lower; September corn 1c lower.

In Toledo business has been dull and trading in wheat futures lighter. Markets have been weak and prices have declined. At close August and September were 2¼c and December 2¾ lower. On the call September sold at 99¾c@99⅞, December at $1 02⅝@1 03. After the call August sold at 99¾c and closed at ¼c. September sold at 99⅝c and closed at 99¼; December sold at $1 02⅝ and closed at $1 02⅜. After change December sold at $1 02⅛ and at $1 02⅜. Cash wheat was less active and 2¼c lower. No 2 soft sold at 99¾c and closed at 99¼; No 3 soft at 91⅝c to 94c; rejected No 1 at 88c.

Corn, nothing doing; lower to sell.

Oats, No 2 white at 34c.

Rye was lower and dull; No 2 cash and August at 91c; September at 90¾c. After change there were sellers of No 2 at 90c. On the call September sold at 92¼c.

Clover seed unchanged; September, $4 80; December, $4 90.

The potato blight in England and Ireland is the last reported menace to the feeding of the multitudes. There is a hard winter ahead for a large portion of the human family.

Mr. Gladstone has written a letter denouncing gambling as "the growing national evil." It is not stated whether or not the letter is addressed to H. R. H., the Prince of Wales.

Business brightens and money circulates under the movement of our wonderful crops to the markets and seaboards. What a country of unparalleled productive capacity is this, and what a pity it is that restrictive legislation keeps us from making the most of natural opportunities.

"Viva Chile." Unless the cause and course of the revolt in the South American republic have been greatly misstated, the right is triumphant there if Balmaceda's government has fallen. A nation which owes its birth to the principle that "Resistance to tyranny is obedience to God" should not withhold its congratulations. "Viva Chile."

The political campaign in Iowa is running so swiftly and smoothly in the democratic channel that it is receiving little attention. It is to Ohio all eyes are turned, and where it is felt the crime of tariff robbery is on trial. This is both flattering and stimulating to the participants in the campaign here, and all the people are the participants. It is a lively campaign we have entered upon, and the best side will win. McKinleyism will be knocked out.

It seems the congregational church will be the next to sound the note of discord. The report of the late international session will, in its introduction, censure those of the American clergy who are advocating certain reforms, because "the church ought not to take part in political, social or economic agitation, its duty being to create in its members a desire to lessen the sorrow and sin of the world." Without further explanation this statement is weak to the verge of childishness. Those of the clergy who believe much of the "sorrow and sin of the world" are directly traceable to wrong economic conditions, and who have conceived it to be their duty as christians, clergymen and citizens to advocate a change in these conditions, will not be turned from their course, and the church will do well to go along with them.

If Burns, the socialist and trades union leader of London, is successful in his contest for a seat in the house of commons, there will be another notch cut to mark the journey of England away from the era of vested rights. John Burns is a power not to be underestimated, and by no means a ranter, or an agitator in the obnoxious sense of that word. A man who spends all his money upon books, and who divides his leisure between the study of the political economy of all periods, the history of all nations, and the study of the conditions of his own time and people, may become a statesman, however humbly born. Should a number of labor candidates be elected to parliament before the next session, as is now anticipated, there may be as lively times in that body as were seen when first the little band of homerulers solidified under a capable leader, and obstructed all action until they were recognized.

There is a rumpus in the county auditor's office. The present incumbent, who goes out of office in a few days, is accused of conniving with Representative Griffin to have the laws amended for personal profit. The accusation is not denied but is boastingly admitted. The person immediately the loser is auditor-elect Jones. Just why Mr. Griffin desired to strike a blow at the man who is to be the auditor for three years at least, and he a republican, is something for republicans to explain. It certainly reveals a state of affairs in the republican party in Toledo that will rip that organization this year and hereafter. To say that this particular manipulation was a shabby trick is expressing it mildly as a business proposition. To also say that the part played by Mr. Griffin is another revelation of his doubtful methods is an expression of truth to which people generally will agree. The work of this man in the legislature will largely be a curse to him and to the city as time passes. Little by little his tricks come to the front. He is a dangerous man to keep in power, and, should the people of Lucas county return him to the legislature (which we do not believe they will do), and should he reach the honorable position of speaker, for which office he is now working, the people of Ohio, as well as of this city and county, will have abundant reason to regret the advancement within less than two years. The [illegible] to step on him is this campaign.

THE IDEAL SUNDAY.

In the September issue of the North American Review the subject of Sunday observance is treated from a liberal standpoint by Rev. C. H. Eaton, pastor of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York city. He states the purpose of his article to be "to consider the ideal Sunday, and the effect upon it of the Sunday opening of museums, art galleries and music halls."

Mr. Eaton's first contention on the necessity of the ideal Sunday is that we must have a day of rest, and there are probably few who will deny his conclusion that "the teaching of the Bible and of science is identical upon this point. Rest is essential."

Next he would have the ideal Sunday "afford opportunity for mental and moral elevation," and any arrangement which denies man the opportunity of having one day in seven free from routine work robs him of this opportunity. It is not for the poor alone he pleads, but also for "the rank and file of business men" who "are being unconsciously vulgarized by moneygetting." He says:

"The ideal Sunday will give men opportunity to educate themselves in science, history and art. It will unveil nature, create friendship, nurture domestic love and social sympathy. It will stand as a constant protest against a merely material life, as a school for mental and moral training, as an inspiration to self-sacrifice and service."

The ideal Sunday will also be a day of worship. On this point the writer's argument is that while religion should be at all times a part of man's experience, and "Deity is found not only in the temple but in the counting-room," while worship may be in the grove as well as in the church, it is still by stated services in appointed places that we can best "compel thought on eternal truths and cultivate in us the sentiment of faith and love." Rest, mental and moral elevation, and worship, these elements of the ideal Sunday he thinks all could unite to commend, and of such use of Sunday "reason and religion unit in commendation."

The relation of the opening of museums, music-halls and art galleries to the ideal Sunday is next considered. To the question, "Does it violate the first condition, rest?" he answers:

"So far as the wage-workers are concerned (and it is in their interest the plea for closing is made), certainly not. Rest is not idleness, but change. The truest rest that could come to the laborer is to fill his mind with new objects of delight, to charm his eye and ear, and invigorate his will. To withdraw men from straightened circumstances and homes of want, and put them in clean, warm and well-lighted museums, galleries of art and music-halls, would be to give real rest to toiling millions."

As to the employment of the caretakers and attendants of these places, they are few in number, would be employed but a few hours of the day, and those not hours of worship. But Mr. Eaton suggests, as a better plan, that the rich and well-to-do who have leisure at all times should take the places of these attendants on Sunday, "and perhaps give simple talks on the objects of art and history," which he thinks would greatly assist in "binding together the members of the family of God." Here is his program:

"Open these buildings at two o'clock, giving all who desire opportunity to attend morning services in places of public worship. Close all places of public amusement established as business ventures and which charge admission for private profit. Without money and without price throw open the treasure houses of art, science and history.

"Give also free concerts for the people, where not only Old Hundred and Gregorian chants shall be sung and played, but all real music. For all real music has moral significance."

Rest, the first condition of the ideal Sunday, Mr. Eaton believes will be best obtained through these educating and refining mediums. He is confident they will be equally potent as means for the moral and mental elevation of man. And while he believes there are those who deprecate such use of the Sunday because they sincerely think it will "interfere with worship, cut the cord of religion, and send the community adrift on a sea of materialism and skepticism," he is confidently certain the effect will be exactly the other way; that it will draw men higher, and toward God.

Abreast of McKinley.

The silver question has put John Sherman abreast of Candidate McKinley. His prowess is recognized by friend and by foe. Now that the contest turns so largely on a currency issue, the republicans get a true measurement of the senator's value, as well as of their own blindness in planning to dispense with him, while the democrats look in vain for a champion who can hold his own with John Sherman in financial debate.—Boston Herald.

They See It Correctly.

Fifty republican editors met in Ohio and decided "to make silver the leading issue." To many men outside of Ohio it may seem that the leading issue was made by the republican billion congress when it passed the McKinley tariff bill.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

The Senator Forgets.

Senator Sherman is now vociferous for honest money. He forgets, however, to tell how the late Senator Beck convicted him of the surreptitious demonetization of silver, an act from which all the currency troubles arose.—The Massillonian.

He Can't Do That.

Before Major McKinley can convince the workingmen of Ohio that his bill has been a good thing for them he will have to produce one of their number whose wages it has increased.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Harrison and the Crops.

According to President Harrison the farmers of the country have produced this year about as much as the last republican congress squandered. He estimates their crops to be worth $1,000,000,000.—Chicago Herald.

Tooting Their Horn.

Other cities may have a "bright future," but Findlay maintains an ever present enterprising activity and prosperity. It is the best town in the universe. —Findlay Courier.

Where Is the Silver Brick?

The Republican league of Kansas demands free coinage of silver. Has Mr. Harrison still in his possession the silver brick presented him in the west!—Courier Journal.

In a Bad Way.

The tariff issue must be in a bad way when Senator Sherman abandons it entirely, as he did yesterday in his Paulding, Ohio, speech.—Mansfield Shield and Banner.

Will Say Something.

Mr. Blaine is saying nothing at present, while Mr. Harrison is gabbling away as if every speech would give him a state delegation. But when Mr. Blaine does talk he will say something.—St. Louis Republic.

When Jimmie Gets After Them.

Before Gov. Campbell gets through with the republican gangsters of Ohio they will wish that McKinley had some of the governor's malaria.—Columbus Post.

And Don't Forget It

Any man who votes for McKinley this fall votes to indorse a principle that reduces the price of farm products.—Shelby County Democrat.

Not the Tariff.

It was sunshine, rain and hard work, not tariff, that made the earth bounteous this year.—Zanesville Signal.

Looks That Way.

It looked as if Farmer Polk might have to turn his ploughshare into a dueling sword.—Boston Herald.

Not Increasing.

The price of wool—4 cents a pound lower than it was last year—is not increasing.—Bellaire Democrat.

SOME RAIN ON TAP.

What Professor Foster Has in Store

For the People Who Love to Watch the Weather.

The Science of Planetary Meteorology Intelligently Treated by an Able Writer.

Special to the Bee.

St. Joseph, Mo., August 29.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from August 27th to 31st and the next will be due to leave the Pacific coast about Sepetember 2. cross the Rocky Allegheny valley from 5d to 5th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 6th.

It will become an important storm about the 4th or 5th after it has crossed the Mississippi river moving eastward.

The weather will be very warm southeast of this storm along entire route across the continent and about one day in advance of the storm centre.

The storm wave will be of large proportions and will probably move along the 38th degree of north latitude. It will inaugurate the rain period that returns about every 52 days.

The rains will not be very largely increased but will be more generally distributed, and many places where local drouths have occurred will be relieved.

But this rain period will not be so noticeable till during the storm wave to follow this one. The usual cool wave will follow this storm of September 2d to 6th, but will not bring a very low temperature and the first ten days of September will average very warm.

Weather and Science Notes.

My prediction of a great storm period during 1891-2 are being fully verified. The newspapers and their readers are prone to misconstrue my predictions and it is important to bear in mind that these destructive storms are not expected to reach their greatest force till March, 1892. Destructive storms have been sufficiently numerous since the middle of May to indicate that we are approaching a remarkable period of unusually destructive storms.

It is well that I remind my readers that before the winter closed I informed them that we would have an unusually cool summer till about the first of August followed by an average of hot weather till about September 10th.

Before the winter of 1890-1 was inaugurated I assured my readers that the winter would average warm till after the first of January, that we would have a good crop year, no general drouth, while destructive storms would gradually increase in number and force.

Planetary meteorology demands that the force of the storms increase all around the earth and the recent great hurricane in the West Indies, the greatest since 1817, and other great storms all around the earth are evidences that my predictions will be fulfilled.

I continue to receive many letters asking for books, pamphlets and my newspaper. I do not publish anything of the kind. After giving twenty years of my life to newspaper editorial work I have permanently retired from the business but believing that the daily and weekly press are the greatest educators of the age, and preferring to reach the masses rather than cater to a few scholastics I have chosen the press as the medium through which all my writings must reach the people and I do not contemplate publishing a paper, pamphlets or books. There is no way to get my writings except through the daily and weekly papers in which my weekly letters are published.

The second success of the rain-makers in Texas was on the date predicted for one of my storm waves—August 19th and at a time when rains and severe storms were general in most of the western states. Circumstances appear to favor the rain-makers and their continued efforts will have many advocates.

Uncle Sam can will afford to pay for further experiments in that line for the reckless destruction of timber in the Rocky mountains and the northern pineries aided by increased cultivation of heretofore prairie lands will tend toward making a desert of this whole country unless some artificial means of securing rainfall can be discovered.

Even irrigation will fail for the destruction of timber and cultivation in the Rocky mountains and the Alleghenies will lower the lake and water course and water for irrigating purposes will become deficient. This is the history of all the old countries on the earth and the rainfall has never been restored except by restoring the forests.

After 10th of September houseplants should be carefully covered every night, in the northern states, as killing frosts may be expected. In estimating the corn and cotton product their which will nature late should not be included for frosts will surely injure the late maturing crops. Large crops of both these cereals, however, now appear to be assured. Indications are that with but few exceptions the ground all over the United States will be in excellent condition for fall plowing and seeding.

A severe general drouth and excessively hot weather will occur south of the south lines of South Dakota, Wisconsin, Michigan and New York in May, June and July, 1892, and in their fall plowing and seeding now at hand farmers will do well to take that drouth and unusually hot weather into their calculations. The drouth will be more severe in the cotton than in the corn districts.

North of the line mentioned the rainfall will be sufficient for the crops with a few isolated exceptions. After the first of March, 1892, the crop season will rapidly advance and especially in the northern states an early spring may be expected.

The coming winter will set in early all over the United States. These are important weather forecasts for the farmer and will be of great value to those who plow and sow accordingly. The deep snows of the coming winter will be very favorable to winter wheat and will put the soil in excellent condition for other crops in 1892.

The electrical currents of the earth will have great force in 1892, and growing crops will have unusual vitality, withstanding drouth unusually well.

These long range forecasts, based on planetary influences, are of great importance to agriculture and that they may be made more useful I am in favor of establishing a department of agricultural meterology where it can have the use of all the information gathered by the present system of the weather bureau. I am thoroughly convinced that such a department could be made very useful at a small expense.

W. T. FOSTER.

How to Get Their Share.

John Sherman may go on talking silver in his most seductive way, but the people are principally concerned in learning how to get their fair share of it from the plutocrats. The senator has not explained why progress and poverty travel side by side in this great, rich state of Ohio, and the senator will only be given a few more months to explain.—Cincinnati Post.

A Change of Heart.

At Toledo McKinley denounced ex-President Cleveland's attitude toward silver; at Niles he lauded it. His Toledo speech might have been mistaken for that of a silver king; at Niles he became a "gold bug." Was he honest at Toledo and dishonest at Niles, or has he recently experienced a change of heart!—Dayton Times.

Bicycle Race.

New York, Aug. 29.—Arrangements were completed yesterday between the managers of Madison Square garden and Thomas Eyck, of Minneapolis, for a six-day international bicycle race, to be held in the garden, beginning on October 18 and continuing until October 24. All the competitors will use high ordinary wheels, and every country will be represented in the contest. A competitor in order to secure a share of the gate receipts will have to cover at least 1,300 miles.

OPEN THE HOMES

For the Entertainment of the Members of the Central Ohio Conference.

Arrangements are progressing for the entertainment of the members of the Central Ohio conference which meets in Toledo on September 23, and continues for one week. It is almost impossible for the committee to personally call on those who would undoubtedly be glad to aid, hence request has been made as follows:

One year ago the Central Ohio conference accepted an invitation to hold its next session, to be held September 23, in St. John's Methodist Episcopal church. The lay electoral conference will meet at the same time, consisting of one layman from each charge. We will have to provide for at least four hundred delegates. Having had many kind offers of assistance, and needing them, we appeal to all sister churches and friends for aid. Committees will canvas lower town next week, and all friends who can assist, if not called upon, are requested to send their names, street and number of residence, and the number of persons they will entertain for the week to A. B. Hood, secretary, 616 Adams street.

NEW GAS LINE

From the Sandusky Field to Perrysburg.

The Northwestern Gas Co. Will Connect Lucas County With a New Field--Work to Begin Next Week.

The Northwestern Natural Gas company is receiving pipe which is being distributed to various points between Perrysburg and the Sandusky field, for the construction of a pipe line for the transportation of natural gas from that field to Perrysburg.

The Northwestern is under contract to furnish Perrysburg with gas, which at present is being supplied from the Detroit line. This step is necessary in order to relieve the Detroit line, which is overtaxed, thereby rendering inadequate service to all connections.

The line will be 24 miles long, and will consist of six inch pipe.

Work on construction will begin early next week. This will give employment to several hundred men.

LOCAL LABOR NEWS.

Linemen in Line on Labor Day—Street Car Men Secure Headquarters — Meetings Last Evening.

The weekly meeting of the Electric Linemens' Union held at Tinners' Hall, last evening, was largely attended. The announcement that the Robison Company would permit their men to decorate and use the electric repair wagon in the Labor Day parade was received with applause. It is expected that the Consolidated will also give the use of its wagon.

James Carney and William Wise were elected delegates to the Central Labor Union. Mr. Carney was also elected financial secretary to fill vacancy. Quite a number of new members were admitted, and the Union is evidently on the boom. The organization will turn out in a body on Labor Day and will carry canes made from trolley and line wires.

The Street Car Men's Union has rented an office in the Meyer's block, Adams street, and appointed a secretary at a salary, it is said, of $50 a month. Heretofore it has been almost impossible for some of the members to attend a meeting or to pay their dues. The new office will be open all day and also in the evening, and dues can be paid at any time.

At the meeting of the Wood Workers' and Machine Hands Union last evening John Williams, Albert Lemke and John Mayer were elected a special committee on arrangements for Labor Day. The Union will carry a new flag in the parade.

The Toledo branch of the Brotherhood of Railway Telegraphers held a brief business session last evening at Turley's hall.

The Knights of Labor are selling puite a number of tickets for the excursion to Put-in Bay on Labor Day. The excursion promises to be a success.

Only a few of the street car men will be able to participate in the parade on Labor Day, but they will decorate their cars and have a hand in the procession.

Stand by Powderly.

Boston, Aug. 29.—At a meeting of local assembly 5573, Knights of Labor, last evening, it was officially declared that the efforts of Master Workman Powderly were honorable and consistent, that his enemies in the labor ranks were chiefly those who had tried to bleed the K. of L., and when they were found out they not only denounced Powderly, but had ever since tried to throw discredit upon the aims and objects of the K. of L. The Boston freight handlers, at their meeting, adopted resolutions denouncing the detractors of Powderly and requesting labor men to pay no attention to the men who were ardent Knights of Labor only while the salaries were liberal and the perquisites numerous.

Will Not Serve.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 29.—The chairman of the parish committee of the Central Congregational church has received a letter from Rev. A. M. Hitchcock of Kalamazoo, Mich., declining a call to that church as assistant pastor on account of the feeling shown against him at the recent committee meeting.

Killed by His Son-in-Law.

Franklin, Ky., Aug. 29.—Thursday evening Harrison Behiler was killed by his son-in-law, John Moore. Both men were substantially farmers. They got into a dispute and a fight ensued, in which Moore struck the old man over the head with a spade, crushing his skull. Moore gave himself up.

Made the Beer Fly.

New York, Aug. 29.—A train on the electric railway from Bath Beach to Thirty-ninth street ferry, South Brooklyn, ran into a brewery wagon at the Forty-second street crossing this morning. One man, the driver of the wagon, was fatally injured and the engineer and two passengers seriously hurt.

Prize Drill.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 29.—St. Paul Camp Sons of Veterans won in the competitive drill last night, Tacoma second. The judges were officers in the Third infantry, U. S. A., from Fort Snelling. The markings were: St. Paul, 93.6; Tacoma, 90.26.

Locating the Blame.

New York, Aug. 29.—The preliminary examination of witnesses summoned to testify in regard to the Park Place disaster was begun to-day by Assistant District Attorney Townsend. The testimony thus far is contradictory.

It Was Suicide.

London, Aug. 29.—Evidence submitted to the coroner's jury in the case of Leonora Mitchell, the American actress whose death was announced yesterday, goes to show that the woman committed suicide.

Public Building.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Assistant Secretary Crounse has selected the property at the corner of Jefferson and Eighth streets as the site for the public building in Sheboygan, Wis. The price paid was $10,000.

Will Die.

Detroit, Aug. 29.—While selling pools at the exposition race track, William A. Armstrong, the well-known pool seller, was stricken with paralysis and will probably die.

Assignment.

New York, Aug. 29.—J. Eugene Ernst, importer of East India merchandise at Nos. 91 and 93 Wall street, assigned to-day to Charles S. Nichols without preferences.

THE MAYOR CAUGHT.

An Interview for Readers of of the Blade,

And a Letter to the Express for the Germans on the Closing of Saloons on Sunday.

Mayor Emmick's double dealing in the Suaday saloon matter has again been shown up, and this time he has been placed on record by a declaration in his own handwriting.

On Wednesday the Blade published an interview with the mayor, in which he claims the credit for raiding the houses of ill-fame, and in answer to a question has the following to say regarding the closing of saloons on Sunday:

"I have of course given strict orders that the Sunday law shall be enforced and I intend, as soon as the new ju y ordinance is passed, to make a special point to see that every saloon is shut up on Sunday. They will be shut up, too, I can promise you, as soon as we get the new ordinance, for I shall personally attend to the matter."

The German Express at once wrote a letter to the mayor, asking him if the reported interview was correct, and stated that while they approved of his action in having the houses of ill fame raided, they would like to know if he was quoted correctly on the closing of the saloons on Sunday.

Their communication was returned with the following reply:

"To the Toledo Express:

Your communication received, and in reply allow me to say that the report concerning the closing of houses of ill fame is all correct. The other report is not correct. I never gave such orders and I made no such threats. Respectfully,

V. J. EMMICK."

The whole correspondence was published in the Express and has been the subject of much rejoicing among the saloon keepers of the city.

GRAN' MA.

On the Adams street car last evening were two women who were plainly mother and daughter. Though they talked to each other in low tones still an occasional word heard by those close to them showed that the country mother had come to visit her Toledo daughter. The mother was wrinkled with age and with work. She was tired from her day's travel. She was timid with the shrinking of elderly country people in their entrance to the city's noise and bustle.

It was pleasant to see the daughter's love shining in her face, to watch her protecting care, and to listen to the low voice whose words seemed to make the mother so happy.

As they neared Seventeenth street the daughter motioned to the driver to stop at that crossing, and looking ahead said to her mother, "There is Fred at the corner waiting for us."

Gran'ma beamed with happy anticipation but said, deprecatingly, "I don't suppose he will remember me; it's more than a year since he saw me."

"Remember you?" said the daughter, "indeed he will!"

This made the mother very happy, and she peered over her glasses to catch sight of her grandson.

Swinging around the lamp post but intently watching the approach of the car was a bright-faced boy of 6 or 7. As the car slackened he stood on tiptoes to look in the windows. He saw two women stand up and move towards the door. He caught sight of their faces. His eyes seemed to expand to twice their size. He gave one quick glance behind and called to a little tot of 4: "Run, Grace, run! Here's gran'ma!"

And the next moment he was hugging gran'ma as only a boy hugs those he dearly loves.

Gran'ma was wiping tears of pleasure from her old eyes.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

A Toledoan Interviewed in the City of the Straits.

George A. Braun, of the leading wholesale hardware firm of Bostwick, Braun & Co., Toledo, arrived at the Hotel Normandie last evening, from a six weeks' sojourn in the region of Georgian Bay, Parry Sound and the Muskoka Lakes, Canada. He states that the mills on Parry Sound are short of logs this season on account of the drouth having "hung up" a large amount of logs in the smaller streams. He observed with interest that a large amount of cedar for paving was being shipped from Georgian Bay to Detroit.

"What surprised me most, and very agreeably, too," said Mr. Braun, "was the very outspoken and almost unanimous sentiment of the people in that region in favor of annexation to the United States. They not only make no secret of their sentiments in this respect, but they do not attempt any subterfuge by way of 'commercial union' or 'reciprocity.' This was not the sentiment of French or Irish Canadians—indeed I don't remember to have met one of either nationality—but of the English and Scotch Canadians, who are said to be the most steadfast adherents of the English crown. In many of the houses where I visited the English and American flags are displayed, and I candidly believe the whole northwest territory—one of the richest sections of the continent—might be acquired by the United States without the shedding of a drop of blood."—This morning's Free Press.

HAVE IDENTIFIED HIM.

The Milford Suicide Proves to be J. E. Hannon.

Cincinnati, Aug. 29.—(Special)—The identity of the young man who met with such a mysterious death at Milford last Monday night has been established by a man who followed one of the many clues.

His right name was John E. Hannon, and he has been well known in this city for years. He was a harnessmaker by trade and had of late been doing small jobs for Albert Holz, the harnessmaker, living at 569 West Fifth street, opposite the C., H. & D. depot.

Destroyed by Fire.

Springfield, O., Aug.—29.—At 1:30 this morning a fire broke out in Chas. Keller's block on Main street, in the principal part of the city. The building was occupied by J. Sigbolt. The flames spread to adjoining buildings and several residences in the rear. The entire fire department has been called out, but the flames are still spreading. Derrickson's cigar store is totally destroyed, and the magnificent Johnson block is in danger.

Crooked Loan Agents.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 29.—Warrants have been issued in Albina for the arrest of I. N. Carson, and B. E. Lower on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses by carrying on an alleged loan association called the "New Jersey Building and Loan Association," which it is asserted was fraudulent.

Seal Hunters.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 29.—Advices from the Pacific report that the Nova Scotia sealer, Camelite had captured 1,400 seals, and the Annie S. Moore had taken 500; the Umbrina had not been heard from, but is believed to have made a good haul. These three vessels are understood to have captured $100,000 worth of skins.

Storm In Bermuda.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 29.—A special cable from Bermuda says that a terrific storm raged there on Thursday, levelling stone walls, uprooting the trees and destroying telegraph wires. It was the greatest storm since 1880.

Committed Suicide.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 29.—Dr. Hiram H. Eldridge committed suicide here last night by opening the main artery in his left arm and allowing himself to bleed to death. He was 40 years old and has a wife in Chicago.

Census of Alaska.

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—Census Agent Petroff has returned from Alaska, having completed the census of that territory. In 1890 the population was: Aluts, 900; Indians, 5,000; Esquimaux, 18,000.

Farrell With the Association for Two Years.

Boston, Aug. 29.—Yesterday Third Baseman Charles Farrell signed a two years' contract with the Boston Association club.

THE DEFUNCT DEMOCRAT.

What Brethren of the Ohio Press Say of the Dead Infant and the Bee.

No Excuse for Living.

Mansfield Shield and Banner.

The Daily Democrat, of Toledo, started about one month ago to fill "a long went fault," as it were, gave up the ghost in approved journalistic style last week. It never had any excuse for living and therefore there is no need of tears. The genuine old Toledo BEE is one of the best democratic afternoon papers in Ohio.

The Effort Unjustified.

Steubenville Gazette.

The Toledo BEE is one of the very best democratic papers in the country and as a newspaper has few superiors anywhere. It fills its place so thoroughly as a democratic organ for Northwestern Ohio, and especially for Lucas county, that it was a matter of surprise to democrats everywhere when another democratic paper was recently started at Toledo. But it seems the new venture was not backed by any considerable number of people and merely represented the few "kickers" found in every party everywhere, but who never "put up" their wealth to any great extent whether to make or break a paper, and so the journalistic infant turned up its toes and died the other day. But that the inevitable result came in such an unequal contest does not justify the effort to cripple the democratic organ and create factions in the democratic party in Ohio's northwest metropolis. There is need, and great need, for reliable democratic organs which shall also be decent, high-toned newspapers such as the Cleveland Plain Dealer and Toledo BEE.

Time on Earth Short.

Defiance Crescent.

Dobson's Daily Democrat at Toledo is dead. It has gone to join that innumerable host. It stayed on earth just 31 days. The boys will soon have a very respectable showing in the newspaper graveyard.

Better Dead.

Wood County Sentinel.

When the compositors on the Toledo Daily Democrat, an infant recently started by the Dobson Bros., formerly of this place, went to work the other morning, they found the fatal figures "30" on their cases. That, in printers' vocabulary, means "all in; hang up;" so the boys walked sadly out to look for another job. The little paper was short lived, but it was doubtless better than. And so the Israelites, Bill and Russ, are once more out of a job.

Lived Long Enough.

Wauseon Expositor.

The Toledo Daily Democrat, started by two adventurers, the Dobson Bros., late of Bowling Green, Defiance, Springfield and elsewhere, to run out the Toledo BEE, has demised from want of support, after an existence of only 30 days. But its life was extended enough to convince its innocent outside financial backers that there was no money in it for them. The BEE is certainly a good enough democratic paper for anyone and has done and is doing valuable service for the democracy of this section of Ohio. We hope it will always enjoy the remarkable prosperity which has followed it.

Springfield Democrat.

The Toledo BEE is a file leader among the best democratic papers of the country.

No Demand for It.

Tiffin Tribune.

The Toledo Daily Democrat, a new evening newspaper started a few weeks ago, has suspended publication. As there was no demand for another daily in that city its career was necessarily brief.

"The Lesson of Failure."

Columbus Sunday News.

"The Toledo BEE has just had the pleasure of writing the obituary of the Toledo Democrat, a paper started a month ago by a couple of Springfielders who thought they saw a glorious chance to make money and fame by running a paper in opposition to the BEE. There were, fortunately, or unfortunately for them, a few democrats in Toledo who did not like the honesty of the BEE and who, to their sorrow, backed the venture with money. Their money is gone, and the only thing they have to represent it is some paper of questionable value. It is something more than an over-night job to establish a newspaper and make it a financial success, as the Toledo people who were back of this venture have learned at considerable cost. But the Democrat served its purpose, which was to teach that the panacea for the disgruntled politician is not to start a newspaper. The BEE is a good democratic newspaper—too good, it seems, for a city the size of Toledo—and there is no reason for any democrat who is in or wants to get into the public service for the public good to complain. By the way, the BEE is about to remodel. Its new building from which it will advocate the cause of the rooster with new energy.

Did Not Pay.

Sandusky Register.

The Daily Democrat, the new organ of Toledo democracy, has suspended publication. Not very long ago the publishers, Dobson brothers, came to this city from Defiance and tried to purchase the Journal. Failing in this they established a new paper in the Future Great, which, it appears, has not been a paying enterprise.

A New Grave.

Fremont Messenger.

The Toledo Daily Democrat, which was started just a month ago for the purpose of bucking the old tried and true BEE, was gathered in by the sheriff last week. The poor little thing lived just 30 days. Its mission on earth, if it had any, was never accomplished. The only thing to mark its memory is a new mound in the newspaper cemetery. The BEE supplies the wants of the democratic party in Toledo, consequently the untimely death of the Democrat is not much mourned.

The Inevitable.

Maumee Era.

The Toledo Democrat has succumbed to the inevitable—the inevitable where brains and ability are lacking.

LABOR DAY GAMES.

List of Prizes and Schedule of Contests—The Program in Full.

The amusement committee appointed by the Central Labor union to take charge of games at the park has announced the following schedule of games and prizes:

1. Hundred yards running race—$10 gold badge, J W Flowers.
2. Ladies' running race—15 pound box creams, Lang, Hellonger & Darby.
3. Standing jump—Fifty cigars, R. Meyer.

MAKE SURE OF THIS

WHENEVER a cooking receipt calls for baking powder, use only the "Royal." Better results will be obtained because it is the purest. It will make the food lighter, sweeter, of finer flavor, more digestible and wholesome. It is always reliable and uniform in its work.

A. FORTIN, Chef, White House, for Presidents Arthur and Cleveland: "I have tested many baking powders, but for finest food can use none but 'Royal.'"

FRUIT IN ABUNDANCE.

Commission Houses Have Plenty to Do In Handling It.

The fruit crop is abundant this year. Talking with a Bee on the subject, Mr. H. R. Lee said:

"The market is just now at its best and everything is cheap and abundant. Fruit in general has been of the best quality this year. Take a walk some morning among the fruit dealers and notice how large and round the pears, plums, peaches, apples, etc., are.

"Fall apples will come in a little slow, as the outlook is not so good for a big crop. Sweet potatoes have made their appearance in the markets and are of an unusual variety. Melons have been very plenty. The musk melons and cantelopes are coming into the market by the wagon load. The commission houses are shipping them out by the car load. Late peaches and grapes are also beginning to arrive."

Mr. Lee thinks the outlook for late fruit, with the exception of apples, is very good. The potato crop will be larger than ever before.

TERRIBLE ITCHING

Used Everything Five Months. In Three Weeks not a Scar or Pimple. Cured by Cuticura.

When my baby was three months old his cheeks and forehead began to break out with white pimples on red surface. In a few days itching commenced, which was terrible. After he would rub it, matter would ooze from the points. In a short time it spread over the top of his head, then scabs soon formed on head and face. We used everything we could hear of for nearly five months. It grew worse all the time. I saw your advertisement of the CUTICURA REMEDIES in the "Chicago Weekly." We purchased CUTICURA REMEDIES and commenced their use. In three weeks' time there was not a sore or pimple, not even a scar, on head or face. He is nineteen months old now, and has no sign of the disease. His scalp is healthy and he has a beautiful head of hair. (See portrait herewith).

Mrs. OSCAR JAMES, Woodson, Kan.

My infant, eighteen months old, was afflicted with skin eruptions on his hips. Bad sores came on other parts. All remedies failed until I procured CUTICURA. Cured a year and no return of disease. Mrs. A. M. WALKER, Carsonville, Ga.

THE MAIDEN MISSIONARY.

There she goes, with schemes prolific for the heathen-isled Pacific,
All her soul with pity burning for those far-off coral shores:
She would have her friends endow a ladies' school in Chicahaua.
And establish kindergartens through the indolent Azores.

Now she pleads with you to sign a paper in behalf of China,
To correct an ancient evil by a prize for larger feet;
And her lovely eyes are swimming, while she speaks of heathen women,
With their shocking scant apparel and the vulgar food they eat.

Not a man has heart to snub her, though she turns the talk to blubber,
Oily natives of Kamschatka and the podgy Esquimaux,
Or, at hinted change of topic, takes you flying
To the most profound of Congo,
To the swarthy son of Afric with a bangle through his nose.

Oh, she looks and speaks so sweetly that she wins your heart completely,
An her strings of dry statistics chain you like a silken mesh;
You get almost profound attention to each several heathen mention,
For her face is like a rose leaf, and your heart is only flesh.

By and by, with fingers taper, she presents a folded paper,
And you spread it out before you with a sigh that sweeps the floor;
Here are victims without number, from a poet to a plumber,
And you never saw such figures on a begging sheet before.

BEESWAX.

Lowell's "Vision of Sir Launfal," which gave such an impetus to his early fame, was composed in 48 hours, while Gray struggled for seven years over his famous "Elegy."

Doors and windows are taxed in France. In a peasant's hut the tax amounts to about 3 francs per annum; on houses in cities it sometimes amounts to 17 francs for each family.

It is now the intention of European engineers to store the waters of the Nile to such an extent as to enable a greater extension of the cotton and sugarcane crops in that region.

To tell the points of the compass with your watch, point the hour hand toward the sun, and one-half the distance between the time and 12 m. is south, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. After 6 p. m. one-half the distance is due north.

Sir William Turner, of the university of Edinburg, who has made a careful study of the whale, calculates that a 80 feet long, in order to attain a speed of 12 miles an hour, must exercise a propelling force of 145 horse power.

A Sedalia, Mo., china store exhibits as a sign 575 plates, 16 pitchers, 8 jars, 2 washbowls and a 15-gallon jug. The plates have a hole in the center and are screwed on boards and frame work extending to the top of a three story building.

It has been found impossible to keep ostriches alive in the London "Soo." Their omnivorous throats discriminate against nothing, and poisonous coppers which mischievous people feed them are as eagerly devoured as any other delicacy.

Meissonier was proud of his shapely and delicate hands. He said that his fingers were so sensitive that he could with his eyes shut lay on the exact amount of color that he wanted on a given spot if somebody placed the point of the brush upon it.

The tree on which bulletins of President Garfield's condition were posted during his last illness has been cut down at Washington. It stood just outside the east gate of the white house grounds, and was removed to make room for pending improvements.

A lake has a wonderfully tempering effect on the climate. Thus, according to M. Forel, the quantity of heat accumulated in the lake of Geneva during the summer of 1889 was equal to that given off by the combustion of 31,000,000 tons of coal, or the amount carried by a coal train 1,120 miles in length.

During the session of England's parliament which has just ended 7,422 luncheons and 10,195 dinners were served in the dining room, 1,564 luncheons and 1,960 dinners were served in the strangers' dining room, and 210 luncheons and 1,301 dinners were served in the terrace dining room.

Few persons have fully realized how terrible a scourge the second visitation of influenza epidemic has been. Sir Brydges Henniker's return shows that in the three months ending June 30 the deaths registered in England and Wales were 171,555, the highest rate, with three exceptions, recorded since civil registration began.

A professor of the Paris academy des sciences has been making experiments which have resulted in convincing him that the rabbit is of all living things the most capable of withstanding a very low temperature. Inclosed all night in a block of ice, a rabbit was found next day getting on very comfortably and evidently not aware of anything very peculiar in his circumstances.

A Los Angeles paper says there are 60 slaves in that city whose owners hold bills of sale of their bodies and deal in them as horses and cattle are bought and sold. The slaves are Chinese women, who dare not attempt to escape, as such an attempt would mean death. They range is price anywhere from $600 to $3,000, according to their age and beauty.

As the result of long-continued experiment, a method of manufacturing steel has been discovered by means of which its tensile strength is enormously increased. The tensile strength of the best tool steel is about 100,000 pounds, but it is claimed that by means of this new method a commercial steel can be produced that will stand a test of 200,000 pounds, and this, too, without any material addition to the cost.

A new kind of stamps will be introduced in the postal telegraph service of Russia with a view to securing the inviolability of the privacy of letters. The new stamp is printed on very thin paper, and can not be used again if it is once put upon a letter. When used wet and taken off the envelope it leaves an indelible impression upon the spot where it was attached, so that if a new stamp is put upon the same spot the impression of the first stamp can be seen through it.

Upon the headstone of a grave in the old fort cemetery at Winslow, Me., is inscribed this epitaph: "Here lies the body of Richard Thomas, an Englishman by birth, a whig of 70. By occupation a cooper. Like an old rum puncheon, marked, numbered and shooked, he will be raised again and finished by his Creator. He died September 28, 1814. America, my adopted country, my advice to you is this: 'Take care of your liberty.'"

Another relic of the rebellion has been discovered in Virginia. A few days ago, while a log two feet in circumference was being cut in two near "Bloody Angle," in Spottsyivania county, the saw went through the butt end of a 12-pound shell which was imbedded in the log out of sight. It is supposed that the tree was about nineteen inches in diameter at the time the shell was fired in 1863, as these trees grow about a quarter of an inch a year.

According to the Victoria Naturalist, the butterflies of Australia are in the habit of bathing. An observer says he saw a butterfly alight close to the water into which it backed until the whole of the body and the lower part of the hind legs were submerged, the two forelegs alone retaining their hold on the dry land. After remaining in this position for something like half a minute it flew away, apparently refreshed.

The stock of paid notes in the bank of England for five years in about 77,745,000 in number, and they will fill 13,400 boxes, which, if placed side by side, would reach two and one-half miles. If the notes were placed in a pile they would reach to a height of five and two-thirds miles, or if joined end to end would form a ribbon 12,455 miles long. The superficial extent is rather less than that of Hyde Park. Their original value was over £1,750,626,000, and their weight over 90 ¾ tons.

It is said that the ingenious Mr. Nayemury Sakusaboro, the Japanese druggist, has make excellent success of his experiment of converting wild hemp into a textile impossible to distinguish from silk. Many trials were made at first of the hempen thread at various silk weaving manufactories in Kioto and elsewhere, and the reports were that "the web had a lustre, beauty and softness, and more than the durability of silk, while the plant as it grows is much cheaper than the slow and expensive product of the silk worm."

The investiture of a clergyman with the rank of bishop in England is attended by some curious survivals of medieval mummery. When the bishop of Peterborough was ordained recently he rapped his pastoral staff on the door of the church and waved his hand for the purpose of exorcising all evil spirits from the interior. Then when he entered the sacred edifice he was preceded by a chaplain bearing a crown and marched up the broad aisle arrayed in an antique cape of white satin elaborately and ornately trimmed. On his head he wore a mitre of white satin covered with red trimmings of silk braid.

THE STAGE LOCALLY.

Amaranth Boys Play at Presque Isle.

Coming and Present Attractions at the Theaters—A Toledo Girl at the People's.

A very clever company appeared with Hallen and Hart in Later On at Wheeler's last evening. The piece is better than ever and the cast is a strong one. A number of good musical numbers have been added, and no end of new business. Clara Thorp, who made a good impression here recently with the Parlor Match as the Innocent Kid, is with the company and is making a hit with her dances.

The musical numbers were excellent throughout. Especially so was the composit chorus of national airs which is sung with tremendous success in Digby Bell's opera Tar and Tartar, now being played in New York. Three of the latest productions in New York city contain these composit choruses which have proven in each case the hit of the show. Later On will be repeated here this evening.

The Boys Made a Hit.

Although the weather was chilly last evening and especially so on the water, a large crowd went down to Presque Isle to witness the performance given at the island opera house by the Amaranth Comedy company. The boys fully expected to play to one man in the audience, and were quite surprised when they saw the sea of faces down in front. Will Stackhouse looked after the musical part, Geo. Leibius sung ballads, Geo. W. Stevens did a black face monologue, Gus Leibius did the tremendous swell, Chas. O'Brien did a new and clever Irish turn, Stevens and Bert St. John appeared as two big boys in an original specialty called Two Button Kids. St. John made a hit as Baldy Sowers. The performance concluded with the Leibius Brothers in the Happy Deitchers. It was a very good show and applause was generously bestowed.

Lost in New York.

One of the strongest attractions that Manager Brady ever played at the People's was Lost in New York, which has been presented here twice in the last two years, and which will Monday evening open its third engagement at the People's theater for the entire week. The play is very popular here and the fact that one of Toledo's daughters is playing the leading character in the drama will do doubt make it doubly attractive. Miss Louise Galloway is a native of Toledo and is a most talented girl. She takes the part of Jennie in which Patrice and Lottie Alter made such hits, and in which Miss Galloway, according to all reports, is the superior of either in character. Gus Pixley, a strong Toledo favorite, is still doing the "gas meter inspector," and his inimitable personation of the "Tramp." He is singing some new songs as well as the old one, "The Whistling Coon," which catches the house every time. The balance of the company is much the same as last season and includes Adelaide Colton, Henrietta Scott, Annie Eagar, Baby Lillian Spencer, Gus Pixley, John Archer, J. C. Duncan, Wm. Ballert, Harry Todd, E. A. June and others.

Among the scenic features will be the river of real water 75 feet long, 30 feet wide and four feet deep, containing over 60,000 gallons of water, and the genuine steamboat running at full speed are still salient features of the production.

At Wheeler's Monday Evening.

The Last Days of Pompeii will be the attraction at Wheeler's Monday evening. The production is on the spectacular order and scenery for the five acts is carried complete. The opera house scenery will be entirely cleared from the stage. The play is a dramatization of Bulwer Lytton's wonderfully effective novel, arranged by John Palmer, who is to appear as the Egyptian priest. The piece and actors come to Toledo with the best of recommendations from the press all over the country.

Mr. Moxon, of the People's.

Wm. Moxon's familiar face will be missed from the door of the People's theater, as he has gone to Cleveland, where he is to assume like duties at the Lyceum. Mr. Moxon was pleasant and obliging and kept the front of the house in good order. His friends wish him success.

JUDGE SALA'S SENTENCES

Are Dealt Out in Different Forms

On Similar Cases—One House of Ill-Fame Allowed to Run, While Another Is Ordered Abated.

Judge Sala, of the police court, has boasted and the same boasts have been published on his behalf, that he is determined to weed out the houses of ill fame and abate the nuisance whenever a conviction is made before him. He says the brothels must go.

In this connection a brief review of some of the proceedings in his court during the past two weeks may be of interest. The judge claims that it is his special desire to have Canton avenue cleaned out, and last week two of the most prominent resorts of vice on that street were raided.

They were the places kept by Nellie McAuley and Rosa Losee. The McAuley woman appeared in court, pleaded guilty, and Judge Sala fined her $75 and costs and ordered the nuisance abated.

The Losee woman, at first, pleaded not guilty and her case was continued until Wednesday of this week, which was the day after the big raid. On this morning she appeared in court and pleaded guilty. The judge then fined her $75 and costs, but did not say anything about abating the nuisance and Rose can continue to run as before. Yet on the afternoon of this same day, Wednesday, when the cases in the general raid came up Mabel Fulton and Alice Monroe each pleaded guilty to the charge of keeping a house of prostitution and were fined $50 and $75 with the costs, and both nuisances ordered abated. In pronouncing sentence the judge stated that under the law he was obliged to order the nuisance abated whenever convictions were made before him.

German Reformed Church.

Lima, O., Aug. 29.—The second days session of the German Reformed church of the United States was opened by Rev. G. I. Stern of Indianapolis, Ind., addressing the synod. Immediately after the opening exercises of the session the motion to omit the sending of delegates to the Ohio synod was rejected by a decided vote, a committee is to prepare special instructions to be delegates to that body. The synod then voted to hold its next annual meeting in the Second Reformed church at Dayton, O., on the third Wednesday in September, 1892.

THE OHIO FISH CAR

Now on Exhibition at the Union Depot.

Superintendent Billy Lantz, of Toledo, Doing the Honors—Brief Description of the Machine.

Hundreds of people visited the new fish commission car at the Union depot yesterday. Superintendent Lantz, who is in charge of the car, explained the plans and designs, and was generally very accommodating. The car is handsomely finished and furnished, and is a combination sleeper and chair car. It has all the accommodations and facilities of a first class sleeper and also those of a dining car. It is built expressly for the fish commissioners of Ohio, and its name "Buckeye" is printed in handsome letters on each side.

The facilities for carrying and distributing spawn and fish are excellent. There are four large iron lined tanks along the sides, about two and one-half feet in width and running the length of the car. In the center is a raised box also the length of the car, which is used as an ice cooler. In the tanks are numerous netted boxes in which the various species of fish will be carried. The front of the car is the sitting room with tables, chairs, etc., and in the rear is the kitchen which is also provided with all the utensils necessary for such an apartment. Over the tanks are several sleeping berths arranged after the most modern type of vestibule sleeping cars. In fact there is nothing lacking to make the car a comfortable and pleasant home.

Speaking with a Bee yesterday afternoon Mr. Lantz said that the first deposits will be made in the vicinity of Toledo. He would place marble catfish and black bass in Ten Mile creek and Denman's creek near Presque Isle, and marble catfish in Swan creek. These deposits will probably be made within a week or two.

One important concession made by the United States government regarding this car is that hereafter the Ohio commissioners will handle and deposit such fish as the government cars would distribute and plant. This will facilitate matters very much as it will enable Superintendent Lantz to secure an abundance of fish for the Ohio rivers that could not otherwise be procured from the government, and it will also facilitate the transportation of the car outside of Ohio when it is necessary to go outside.

This afternoon Superintendent Lantz entertained a number of traveling passenger agents in the car, and they had a most enjoyable time.

DUN'S TRADE REVIEW.

Frosts Have Not Injured the Crops.

Money Going West to Move the Grain—Speculation Taking a Back Seat.

New York, Aug. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The speculation in breadstuffs has been broken down. The failure to export at more than $1.10 for wheat has administered the corrective which this trade greatly needed.

The threatened withdrawal of the crop by the Farmers' alliance amounts to so little that receipts were 11,400,000 bushels for the last week reported, against 4,900,000 for the corresponding week last year, while receipts of other grain slightly decreased.

Money is moving rapidly to the interior, but the treasury has been strengthening itself, adding $2,800,000 to its gold for the week, and also taking in $900,000 more treasury notes than it put out.

By requiring deposits of gold at New York against shipments of currency to the country banks, the treasury has somewhat increased its gold reserve, but the main fact is that its receipts for the past week have exceeded its payments of all kinds by about $1,200,000.

The official announcement that all the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds not offered for the extension Sept. 1 will be paid on demand promises a large addition to the available currency after the 1st of next month.

Crop prospects are in all respects exceedingly bright and the reports of injury by frost do not appear to affect any considerable proportion of crop.

There is every reason to suppose that the yield of wheat will be much larger than the 544,000,000 bushels estimated by the agricultural department, though a yield no greater would leave 200,000,000 bushels for export.

Hog products are somewhat stronger in sympathy with corn, but oil is lower and coffee is weak. Cotton has advanced 3-16. It would be a good thing for producers in all probability, if a considerable part of the forthcoming crop should be cut off by unfavorable weather.

The market for iron shows somewhat larger sales and a better demand, though new brands of Virginia iron are still offered at low prices; a little improvement is seen in bar iron, and plates are very active, though prices are very low; structural iron is in fair demand, but not stronger in price; the demand for rails is stagnant, the combination having succeeded in so far maintaining the price that buyers are disposed to wait as long as possible; in the minor metals no change is seen in prices.

Coal is weak, but there is a better feeling in the market. Sales of wool continue large, and the manufacture is fairly well employed.

A slight improvement is seen in leather at Philadelphia, though buyers are cautious, but lumber is quiet, the building trade being stagnant, and orders for woolen goods are backward.

Trade at Cleveland shows some gain over last year, and at Cincinnati a fair improvement in groceries, while at Chicago receipts of wheat are increased four fold and of wool two fold compared with last year, and an increase is seen in flour, cheese and in sales of dry goods, clothing and shoes, but a decrease of one-half in cured meats, one-third in lard and some decrease in butter, hides and oats.

A heavy increase is seen in trade at St. Louis, country merchants buying liberally, and trade is improved at Kansas City and at Minneapolis and St. Paul, harvest prospects being of the brightest.

At Nashville the grocery trade is better, but other business only fair, and very little improvement is seen at Memphis, while trade in cotton is slightly improved at New Orleans, and at Galveston the prospects are favorable.

As much depends upon the balance of foreign trade, it is highly important that the imports for July exceed the exports by only $3,800,00 instead of $23,000,000 last year, and for August thus far the increase in exports at New York is 13.6 per cent., while in imports there is a decrease of 18 per cent. Prices of all commodities have declined 1-2 per cent. for the past week.

The stock market at New York has been comparatively free from speculative excitement and fairly strong, with some foreign buying and not much realizing thus far by foreign holders.

The business failures occurring during the last seven days number 226, as compared with a total of 216 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 189.

Special Masters' Sale

United States of America, Northern District of Ohio.

The Central Trust Company of New York Complainant, v The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad Company and others, Defendants. Consolidated Causes. In the Circuit Courts of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western division, and for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, and for the Eastern District of Michigan, and for the Western District of Michigan, Southern Division. In equity.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 5, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on July 1, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, entered in the above entitled cause on June 29, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Michigan, Southern Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 30, 1891, we, Benjamin F. Wade and Hiram F. Carleton, the Special Masters designated in said decrees, will sell without appraisement, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, in the United States Court room, in the City of Toledo, County of Lucas, and state of Ohio, at three o'clock, P. M. on the 6th day of October, 1891, the mortgaged premises and property mentioned in said decree, and thereby directed to be sold. The same will be sold in the manner and upon the terms hereinafter stated, viz.:

1. Said Special Masters will offer for sale separately that portion of the property of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company known as the Central Division, being the property described in the first mortgage of the Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company, dated April 14, 1881, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to such Division which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be decreed by the court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said mortgage. Said property will be offered for sale as an entirety without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $1,500,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands, or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the court, the sum of $15,000 in cash, or first mortgage bonds of said Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company to the amount of $20,000 of principal. 2. Said special Masters will offer for sale separately the property covered by and embraced in the consolidated mortgage of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company, dated December 1, 1890, excluding the said Central Division above described, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to the same which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be decreed by the Court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said Consolidated Mortgage. Said property (excluding the said Central Division) will be sold as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $450,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the Court, the sum of $40,000 in cash, or Van Wert First Mortgage Bonds or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, or both, of the total par value of $50,000 of principal. The purchaser or purchasers at such sale may, if he or they so elect, be subrogated to the rights of Watson H. Brown, Receiver, under a certain agreement between said Receiver and the Haskell & Barker Car Company, dated January 18, 1890, for purchase of equipment, upon assuming his liabilities under the same.

SEPTEMBER DAYS.

From September's misty grass,
Growing on the furrowed ground,
Comes the cheery cricket sound:
While from twisted browning trees
Apples fall.

And the warm and dusty winds,
Turning white the roadside weeds,
Whirl the leaves and thistle seeds.
From the mellow hazy air,
Blue jays call.

O'er the meadows aftermath
By the August rains made green,
Harvest spiders webs are seen,
Showing wet, like fresh drawn net
Spread to dry.

Threading from the Summer's woof,
Golden-rod September weaves,
Binding in with crumpled leaves,
Sparrows trailing flight from trees
Through the sky.

Butterflies with snowy wings,
Rising from the asters white,
Look like petals in their flight,
Or as souls of summer flowers
Passing by.

—Nina Shaw, in The Ladies' Home Journal.

LILIES.

In my garden there are lilies,
Lilies swaying to and fro,
Golden lilies, rosy lilies,
Lilies white as driven snow.

Here the blazing tiger lily,
There the evening lily pale,
And in corners dark and shady
Little lilies of the vale.

Here the yellow lenten lilies,
There the iris—fleur de lis,
In the moat are water lilies
White and yellow, floating free.

In my garden there are lilies,
And the wild bees come and go,
Seeking honey from my lilies
Swaying slowly to and fro.

—Ethel Clifford in the English Illustrated.

Thirty pages of the Arena for September are devoted to "Fashion's Slaves," an article written by Mr. B. O. Flower, the editor of the magazine. It is profusely illustrated with fashion-plates of the last thirty years, and it must be confessed that some of the reproductions will make the "slaves" wince. We were such guys in "the hoop-skirt era," from 1860 to 1865; we were such scavengers in "the era of bustles and trains," 1870 to 1875; we were such spectacles in the tie-backs of 1878 and 1879, in the pull-back of 1886. Getting from the skirt to the waists he treats us to a discourse on hygeine, and of course it is illustrated with those two stock cuts, showing the bones in the Venus of Medicis and in the corset-wearing woman of to-day. Then to show how gracefully we might drape and dress there are illustrations of Greek and other antique, flowing costumes. There are also Julia Marlowe and Modjeska in Shakesperean costumes, Margaret Mather in peasant dress. Of the text of Mr. Flower's article we say nothing. It should be read as a whole, and we urge its perusal on every member of the Household who is considering what is her duty toward the dress reform movement. A sufficient plea has already been made in this department that the movement shall have due consideration. We want to attain to the dignity of highest womanhood if we can; to be first-class housekeepers, satisfactory wives, model mothers, and above all, to make the most of ourselves for ourselves, because this is woman's first duty, and because on this all the rest of her attainments depend. But it may as well be stated here that while we are ready to throw away any bands and ligaments of clothes, tapes or bones that stand between us and these attainments, we are not going, for home dress or street dress, to wear the costume of Parthenia, or of Marguerite in Faust, or of one of Shakespeare's pages. Let the reformers make a note of this—we are not going to dress for stage effect, and the costume they devise must not be outre nor bizarre.

The Isabella association is awakening study of the early history of American discoveries and explorations. Isabella clubs and circles throughout the country are availing themselves of courses of study relating to pioneer history of the Isabella period and the Columbian era. Among subjects receiving attention are "Ancient Spain, its earliest inhabitants and the Visigothic rule to the time of the Moorish invasion;" "Geographical Position and Division of the Spanish Peninsula" "Moorish Architecture and the Alhambra," "Isabella and the Kingdom of Castile," "Conquest of the Moors," "Spanish America."

A friend of the Household, reading in a recent issue something that was written concerning various cubs for women, calls attention to the Illinois Women's alliance. This organization is one of the clubs—if it can be called a club at all—organized for business [and not social purposes. Consequently its membership is not confined to any one "class." The members are representatives chosen from various women's organizations to constitute the alliance, which as a central body, and, representing a large constituency, can concentrate a strong power to carry any work it undertakes to a successful issue. The representatives or delegates are from the suffrage, church, benevolent, temperance, fraternal and labor organizations of women of the city of Chicago, and perhaps others. The motto of the alliance is: "Loyalty to Women—Justice to Children." Its aims are: "To obtain the enforcement of all laws enacted for the protection of women and children, and to secure the enactment of such laws as may be necessary; to investigate all business establishments and factories where women and children are employed, and public institutions where women and children are maintained; to procure the appointment of women as health inspectors, as members of boards of education, and to serve on boards of management of public institutions." The society is said to have accomplished a great deal of good; among other things to have secured the enactment of a city ordinance providing for five sanitary policewomen—the first in the world—who wear the star and fearlessly perform their duty, which is to inspect places where women and children are employed.

Vacation days are almost over, and the children must be made ready for school again. The fruit season is passing, and canning, preserving and pickling must be attended to. Cool weather is at hand, and the flannels and extra bedding must come out and be looked over, and aired, and prepared for use. While an account of stock is taken by the housemother to see how much must be bought now, along with which for many comes the extra work of a sewing woman in the house. Then the fall house-cleaning—doesn't it seem last week that we finished the spring cleaning? How the weeks fly by for the busy wife, mother and housekeeper. What is the best way to get through all the work September brings us? Why should we not have a symposium on this question? Doubtless the Household members have "planned ahead," as capable women always do. Why not have an interchange of plans? These columns are open for it.

EMBRYOTIC PEDAGOGY.

Oh, poor Peggy Jane! your pathetic letter of two weeks ago, gave me a reminiscent chill. You see "I've had 'em." And so you are teaching your first school, said school in a remote district! In other words you are handling "raw material," tilling virgin soil, and you feel somewhat disheartened sometimes over the exceeding "rawness" of the material, or your imaginary incompetency.

Of course you do; but no matter! Work right on just the same, whether you are disheartened or not. "To each moment its allotted task." Never mind your feelings; simply move along. And when your work seems unavailing, never mind the seeming; attend to the work. When prayer seems unheard never mind the hearing of it, that is not yours; just pray on.

Our feelings are somewhat like morbid, capricious appetites. The more we listen to them the more we may; the more we obey them the more we must; the more we follow them the more crooked the paths through which they will drag us.

And listen now—here's a secret and don't tell any body: Whatever those feelings are now they will soon be something else. They are as fickle as they are tyrannical. Happy you, if in those first days of your school teaching you learn to say to them, what the city girl said to the cow, "Lie down, sir."

But now for the work. I had hoped that some one of the able writers in our Household would answer your letter and give you and others the benefit of their experience in teaching, but as none of them took up the subject I have said to my temerity: "Lie down, sir, I'm going to work."

Taking it for granted that you have a great many pupils who must begin at the beginning. Do not have them drone out a—b—c, but print on the blackboard the word "ax." Spell it for them, pronounce it; have them collectively and individually spell it, and pronounce it. After they've advanced far enough for the trial print "ox;" ask them if that is "o." Of course they'll laugh, perhaps some of them will answer, "You bet it hain't."

But you will soon find that your class is enthusiastic. Never mind their uncouthness. Tell that feeling of disgust to "Lie down, sir." And just now is the time to print the word "ox." Ask them if that is "ax." You'll get a rousing negative. After chatting with them for awhile about the new arrival, and when you are quite certain they are all in a receptive mood, tell them that the new word is "ox" and make them tell you the name of the letter to be found in both words, and the name of the one found only in "ax." Help them to spell "ox." Point quickly to each letter in both words. Make them name the letters instantly, etc.

"Now, children, watch! I'm going to print a new word. See if you know any of the letters that are in it," you say next. Print carefully, "box." My! how happy they'll look at meeting their old acquaintances. Make them name the "x" and the "o." Excite their curiosity about that other fellow. Perhaps some exceedingly brilliant member of the class would be able to tell you that is "o." Don't you tell them anything, until you are sure you must.

Before your recitation closes print all the the letters that they have learned, and make them name them as rapidly as you form them "x, b, o, x." And so lead them through the alphabet. Take care as much as possible) in each new word to give them some letters with which they are already acquainted. Use easy familiar words.

Every little toddler should have a slate and pencil. And oh my friend! what opposition I aroused in my school just 20 years ago by insisting upon this. You live (I hope) in better days. "She wants to teach them to write when they don't know how to spell nor read," said the parents. But I invited them to come to school on a certain day and see what I would do with slates. I conducted a recitation for them such as I have described to you. The scholars were "all alive" with interest. They were in earnest. The directors and the few other parents that were there were enthused with the little ones. But, when the recitation was over. I said to the class "Now, children, take your slates and pencils and copy these words from the board so that you will not forget them,

"We haint got no slate," they shouted.

What arguments the poor school ma'am used would be "too numerous to mention," but the youngsters all got slates. Browns and Smiths got them because I succeeded in convincing them. Jones got them because the children cried for them. Sampsons got them because the rest "had 'em." Wilkenses got them because they wouldn't be got ahead of by Sampsons. And last of all, Blacks and Whites got them because they were the only ones in school that didn't have them.

And so a great reform was worked. And, dear Peggy Jane, if you will take the pains to investigate the matter, you will see that nearly all great reforms are worked in just this way.

Oh, the stupid cruelty of sending a wee babe of six to school with a book and telling it to study. Study how? Study what? Why tell it is, an outward visible sign of your barbarism long ago!

But I must stop now, for if this effusion does not get into the waste basket it is long enough. And if it does get into that handy receptical it is long enough.

Do write again, Peggy Jane.

THE ISLE OF PEACE.

In the ocean of strife sleeps a fair, peaceful Isle
That my bark cannot reach, though I row all the while.
Sometimes it seems near me and I pull for the shore,
But the waves beating backward make power less the oar.

Oh, how long must these billows of wild trouble sweep
Where life's tears and life's tumults rave dark on the deep?
The strong arm halts weary, the hand drops the oar,
And hope sinks again as, beaten back from the shore.

The boat struggles on, and my heart's cries increase,
Yet a beacon is somewhere, on some isle of peace.

A GIRL'S SCHOOL DRESS.

Here is a dress just suited for school use and now that gymnastics have been introduced in the public schools mothers will find it a very suitable as well as inexpensive costume for their daughters.

It always pays to get good material for school wear, as it costs the same to make it, and poor materials wear shabby so soon and then are shabby to the end. Heavy cloths, bourettes, serges and such materials are the best for service. Heavy braids, Hercules braids, should be used to trim them. This dress, made in dark gray and red, black and a dull paid, or a plaid trimmed with plain, is very effective.—Kansas City Star.

THE CYCLE AND THE HORSE

Cycles. Yes, cycles, bicycles, tricycles in Toledo. Three factories, all doing good business, which proves that the "Lady of the Lake" is progressing and keeps abreast of the times.

One writer places the number of riders of these vehicles on our streets way up into the thousands. Of course they enjoy it or the Outing clubs would not flourish as they have. They are constantly adding to the numbers and give elegant receptions for their friends, and Margaret Sangster is singing the praises of the cycling girl in her dainty costume on the wheel.

And yet some of us "old fogies" sigh for the past, when the riding skirt came within a foot of the ground, and such thrilling stories were written and devoured of heroines riding a coal black steed, or a beautiful white palfrey. Then the accidents; which brought an "Adonis" upon the scene in time to save her life. Then followed the wedding, to cap the climax.

Those were the days when girls were taught that sitting in company, the feet should not protrude beyond the dress skirt. These people are horrified when they see the feet crossed to display the foot and shoe, and these objects made the topic of conversation, how much they cost and where they were bought.

I will not soon forget the first cyclers I met on the road. 'Twas a merry party of gentlemen from Syracuse, N. Y., enjoying a ten mile run in the country on a plank road. Yes! they had to pay toll. I looked in wonder at the noiseless wheels—the ease of motion and the fearless faces of the riders. I cannot say I admired them; neither did the horses—they appeared very angry that any person should propel wheels on that road.

I remember another instance of an angry horse, which a lady was riding in a town not far distant from Toledo. The moment the horse saw the cycles he rushed at them, planting his fore feet in the first wheel. He unseated the rider; then he promptly took his feet out of that wheel and started for the other riders, who were wise enough to roll swiftly out of his way. The lady was not dismounted, neither did she marry the cycler; but the accident so terrified her she never rode upon the streets afterward which the cyclers frequented.

Was it instinct taking vengeance on science, which dared to compete with the work of the animal? ZENOBIA.

SELFISHNESS.

Ah! How much is implied in that one word. If we will but stop to consider, nearly every act of our lives is prompted from some selfish motive. We are loth to take the truth home, and try to make ourselves believe that our motives are Christ-like and wholly unselfish; that we do not care for the praise of men, and wish to be thought more perfect than others when we do deeds of charity and goodness.

How very often are we selfish by being thoughtless. It was "our Barbara" who once remarked to me, "We must not be so selfish as to rob our friends of their vitality and light-heartedness, by recounting to them our sorrows and woes, requiring them, as it were, to help bear our burden in addition to their own."

No doubt you have all seen (I have) the tears in the eyes and the lips quiver of a sympathetic friend as we told of the heavy cross we were compelled to bear. It is all wrong. Rather let us keep our own sorrows to ourselves and try and cheer others.

Self-ishness seems to be the first natural impulse of children as soon as they are of an age to show any trait of character. Place two little ones upon the floor and put toys within their reach and see how quickly they will both scrabble for the brightest and prettiest. This trait of character cannot be checked too soon, for what is there more unlovely than a supremely selfish person?

This is called a selfish world. If this be true, we all have a hand in making it so. Are we not selfish even in our prayers; praying always for the first and choicest of heaven's blessings to fall on those nearest and dearest to us and ourselves.

May we grow more unselfish and thoughtful,
As we journey along day by day;
Our influence lives on, on forever,
Tho' we may soon pass away.

Adrian, Mich. L. C. H.

THE GIRL TO BE AVOIDED.

She is the girl who takes you off in one corner and tells you things that you wouldn't repeat to your mother.

She is the girl who is anxious to have you join a party, which is to be a "dead secret;" and at which, because people are very tree and easy, you are uncomfortable and wish you were at home.

She is the girl who tries to induce you, "just for fun," to smoke a cigarette, or to take a glass of wine, and you don't know, and possibly she doesn't, that many of the sinners of to-day committed their first sins "just for fun."

She is the girl who persuades you that to stay at home and care and love your own, to help mother and to have your pleasures at home and where the home people can see them, is stupid and tiresome; and that spending the afternoon walking up and down the street, looking at the windows and the people, is "just delightful."

She is the girl who persuades you that slang is witty, that a loud dress that attracts attention is "stylish," and that your own simple gowns are dowdy and undesirable. She doesn't know, nor do you, how many women have gone to destruction because of their love for fine clothes.

She is the girl who persuades you that to be on very familiar terms with three or four young men is an evidence of your charms and fascination, instead of being, as it is, an outward visible sign of your perfect folly.

She is the girl who persuades you that it is a very smart thing to be referred to as "a gay girl." She is very, very much mistaken.

And, of all others, she is the girl who, no matter how hard she may try to make you believe in her, is to be avoided.—Ruth Ashmore, in The Ladies' Home Journal.

A DAINTY DEVICE.

It originated with a gracious lady, whose hands are skilled in cunning work, and who has, in addition, heaps of friends. Very often they send to her flowers—the choicest, the shyest, the rarest, of the season. She so loves the sweet blossoms that she cannot bear to have them fade utterly out of her life. By consequence she makes of them silken immortelles. It is done in this fashion: Setting the flower at ease in some dainty vase, with her needle she sketches it accurately upon a background of firm lustrous satin, delicate in color, and chosen to harmonize with the tints of the blossom, which is wrought with pre-Raphaelite fidelity. Then, underneath or above, as one side or in a corner, she writes a bit of verse chosen with special reference to the flower, its giver, or the occasion of giving, and embroiders the words in gold or silver thread. This particular woman keeps her achievements hidden in a napkin—otherwise a box. There is no reason, though, why the same thought should not make walls and couches and draperies blossom with more than the rose. It is quite possible thus to achieve panels for a boudoir that will have the charm of sentiment and association, or to pillow on poppies full of more than slumber's balm—in fact, to fill many things of daily use with the savor of friendliness and the enduring fragrance of remembered good deeds.—Harper's Bazar.

SCRAP BASKET.

A young graduate from Vassar had read the following paragraph: "It must be disinterested benevolence which leads the sweet young things who go to Vassar college to plant trees on commencement day. They can't ever expect to climb them." She didn't like it, and in reply wrote: "It is surely better to plant trees at college, even if debarred from the questionable privilege of climbing them, than to sow wild oats, from which no one ever yet failed to reap a harvest."

FOR REMBERANCE.

It would be sweet to think when we are old
Of all the pleasant days that came to pass;
That here we took the berries from the grass,
There charmed the bees with puns and smoke unrolled.
And as 'round the melon nets when nights were cold
Or pulled the blood-root in the underbrush,
And marked the ring of the tawny thrush,
While all the west was broken burning gold.

And so I bind with rhymes these memories,
As girls press pansies in the poet's leaves
And find them afterward with sweet surprise;
Or treasure petals mingled with perfume.
Looking them in the days when April grieves;
A subtle summer in the rainy room.

—Duncan Campbell Scott, in September Scribner

The position of women in Germany has long been behind that occupied by the sex in some other European countries, but there are now signs of a new departure. Franlein Johanna Mestorf has just been elected director of that famous institution, the Museum of National Antiquities at Kiel, and this action will doubtless lead in time to the admission of women to the German universities on a level with men.

An oilcloth on the closet floor is a great help, for it gives the closet a cosier look and can be wiped up easier and looks much neater than a bare floor.

Search thine own heart. What paideth thee
In others, in thyself may be;
All dust is frail, all flesh is weak;
Be thou the true man thou dost seek.

In everything pertaining to one's home, and home life, it is really the little things that are of the greatest importance. It is the little acts of kindness that make us happy, their omission that constitutes our misery. It is the attention to little details that results in a well-laid table and a well-cooked dinner. It is the little touches that a tasteful woman can give to a room that constitutes its real furnishing.

AUGUST FLOWERS.

The sunflower is the sultan of flowers. It has the luxuriant magnificence of an eastern prince, and yet it is no eastern flower. It is strictly American, consequently the sunflower of the ancients fabled to have been Clytie, originally could not have been our helianthus. Not only the Greek, but the French and English have claimed a turn sole or sunflower that

Turns to her god when he sets
The same look which she turned when he rose.

Observation easily decided that no flower does this, although the sunflower like most flowers is disposed to face the light. The Lobelias are among the brilliant flowers of the month, and of the Lobelias the cardinal flower is the most superb. Mrs. Sigourney speaks of it as the "Lobelia attired like a queen in her pride." Hawthorne has a tender affection for it. He says "the gorgeous scarlet of the cardinal flowers is a joy even to remember. It is a flower of thought and feeling, too. It seems to have its roots deep down in the hearts of those who gaze at it. Other bright flowers sometimes impress me as wanting sentiment, but it is not so with this." The luxuriant trumpet flower with its bright scarlet carolla is now climbing in the woods from Pennsylvania to Illinois and south to the lakes of Atchafaiaya. It always brings to mind the weary Evangeline, resting under that cedar, from whose great arms

The trumpet flower and the grape vine
Hung their ladders of ropes aloft like the ladder of Jacob.

On whose pendulous stairs the angels ascending, descending,
Were the swift humming birds, that fitted from blossom to blossom.

The many varieties of golden rod come with August and linger into the autumn. Just now the golden rod has the promise of becoming the national flower. It merits the honor. It is democratic, grows everywhere, and is loved by rich and poor alike. Our ancesters called it "wound wort," and its Latin name "solidago," also shows that it was used in healing wounds. The learned poet, Alfred Street, prefers to use the Latin name even in verse, saying:

From the brink the solidago bends
Its golden feather.

But Whittier likes the popular name best, and well describes its wealth of color:

Like the flowers of gold
That tawny Incas for their gardens wrought.
Heavy with sunshine droops the golden rod

Along the edges of swamps and ditches is a tall, showy flower resembling the sunflower, from which it is easily distinguished by its conical disk, which eventually becomes oval. It is the rudbeckia, more familiarly known as the cone flower. Not far off is its kindred, the American sneeze wort, whose flowers irritate the nerves and cause sneezing. The old herbalists pronounced it good for diseases in the head, rheumatism and congestion—"often useful when other medicines can hardly avail." Humble as the common name is, the plant has a proud Latin name, Helenicon, named for the Helen who was fairest among women. She is said to have availed herself of its cosmetic properties.

The vervain is easily found, but it is no longer regarded with the reverence given to it formerly. In Greece it was sacred to the god of war. The Romans used it as the badge of ambassadors sent to make treaties of peace. In Germany it was sacred to Thor, and he would not strike with his lightning a house protected by it. The Druids regarded it with scarcely less veneration than the mistletoe. They gathered it when the dog star rose, and took it from unsheltered spots, compensating the earth for its deprivation with the sacrifice of honey. It is associated also with the Christian religion, and called herb of grace. It was worn about the person, and when gathered for this purpose was first crossed, then blessed, saying:

Hallowed be thou, vervain,
As thou growest in the ground,
For in the Mount of Calvary
There thou wast first found.

Thou healest our Savior, Jesus Christ,
And staunchedst his bleeding wound;
In the name of Father, Son and Holy Ghost,
I take thee from the ground.

The cupator.ums are now in blossom. Dog fennel and the purple species, known as joe pye weed, the majestic trumpet weed, and also the hoarhound and thoroughwort, so highly esteemed by our grandmothers for breaking up colds and driving away fevers. The coarse elecampane, too, is in the fields and pastures. Its tremendous name used to be a marvel to children, but its properties were thoroughly familiar.

Along the hedges in the thickets and on rocky slopes the mints are found—the wild bergamot, the coarse horse mint, catnip, spearmint and peppermint, wild basil, calaminth, which the Greeks called beautiful mint, while we name it horse-thyme, meaning that it is large and somewhat coarse. The prunella was once named self-heal, but now its medical properties are of no repute. Children call it blue curls, they note its rare tone of color—a color so unique that an eminent artist once said that, except that in old stained glass windows, he had never seen so rich a hue.

Another flower of rare coloring is the humble anagallis, or scarlet pimpernel. This flower and the common red poppy are among the very few instances of bright scarlet blossoms. Poets call it the cheerful pimpernell. Its Greek name implies that it provokes laughter, and Pliny said that when taken inwardly it produced mirth. Its petals open at 8 in the morning and close at 2 in the afternoon, hence its name, poor man's weather-glass. It is one of the flowers in Linnæus' floral clock.—Caroline K. Sherman in Chicago Herald,

HINTS AND HELPS.

Some of the newest slippers are worked in tent-stitch by means of fine canvas on cloth or satin; others are embroidered with a monogram on colored kids, and also on gold and silver kid.

For early autumn wear and for school dresses dark-colored flannels, gray, blue, brown, garnet, green and even black, are made up with plain skirts, blouse waists, with short jacket and full sleeves, and, if trimmed at all, simply with bows of braid or ribbon.

There is a good deal of talk concerning white bleached and unbleached balbrigan hosiery, but in reality the sales of whits are comparatively small. This summer it is stylish to wear them with white suede or canvas ties with white toilets at the seaside, but that they will ever become of general wear is not expected.

Lisle thread hose do not wear as well as cotton, and the latter may be found so fine that there is no difficulty in the way of quality. First in favor rank the all black, then follow fine lines of tan, gray and mode shades, which are worn by many all of the time, and others wear them only with suede shoes and costumes to match.

The sailor suits for girls are liked, and have a deeper collar than those for boys, which collar is frequently in embroidered muslin on the cotton fabrics used, and is of silk on the woolen materials so much liked for these pretty and useful suits, one of which, at least, every girl under fourteen should have for the sake of convenience. They are made with a full-gathered skirt with a cotton waist, and the blouse sleeves are very roomy.

An easy way of making lavender sachets is to take twelve long stalks of lavender with the flowers, not too dry, tie them tightly under the blossoms, and bend the stalks back over them. Then lace in a narrow colored ribbon under and over, gradually filling in the centre with more of the blossoms, and narrowing again to the points. The sachets are generally made from 4 inches to 5 inches long.

KITCHEN CONFERENCE.

There are few kitchen maids who understand how to wash dishes properly. Indeed, there are are few kitchens where all the utensils are provided so that dishes can be washed by the best methods. Homes possessing the best sets of Dresden china often have no knifeboard and no kitchen rack on which to drain the china and porcelain or glass after it is washed. Where the dining room chinna is washed in the butler's pantry it is often found that one dish pan does the work of two; or that there is an insufficient supply of the proper towels for wiping and washing. There should always be two dish pans, one to contain hot suds in which the dishes are washed, and the other clear, hot water in which they are rinsed.

A "soap-saver," a convenient little instrument made of open wire in which the soap is placed and shaken about in hot water to produce suds, will help to use up small pieces of soap and prevent the soap being left soaking in the water, as it too frequently is by careless maids. If the water supplied to the house is hard, a bottle of household ammonia is almost a necessity. A few drops will soften the water so that suds can be easily produced. A rack for draining dishes is a convenient and useful addition to the butler's pantry or to the kitchen sink, wherever the dishes are washed. This is an open layer of slats laid over a shelf sloping to the sink.

The dishes, after they are washed, are laid on this rack, boiling water is poured over them, and they are left to drain, or they are lifted from the rinsing water on to this rack. This almost does away with the necessity of wiping them, as they will be found to be nearly dry when lifted from the rack, though it is wisest to go over them with a soft absorbent cloth. It pays to get an English knife-board of the kind which are covered with chamois leather and bound with rubber. If you are provided with powdered bats, brick or sandsoap which comes for polishing knives, there will be no trouble in keeping the knives sharp and clean with very little labor.

The season approaches for putting on fall clothing, in the care of which nothing vexes the soul of the housewife so much as the shrinking of the flannels. Here are seven said-to-be infallible rules which, properly observed, will prevent flannels shrinking:

1. Use warm water in which sufficient soap has been dissolved.
2. Wash thoroughly in this.
3. Rinse in clear, warm water twice.
4. Wring out and shake well to clear off all soap.
5. Dry quickly.
6. Do not let the flannels remain in the water either before or after washing.
7. Do not use soda or any washing powder.

Among the hints on cooking vegetables a lecturer advises the use of a little sugar in the water in which corn is boiled, instead of salt, which hardens and shrivels the vegetable.

COSTIVENESS

If not relieved by judicious and timely treatment, is liable to result in chronic constipation. As an aperient that may be used with perfect safety and satisfaction, Ayer's Pills are unsurpassed. Unlike most cathartics, these pills, while they relax and cleanse, exert a tonic influence on the stomach, liver, and bowels, causing these organs to perform their functions with healthy regularity and comfort. Being purely vegetable and free from mineral any kind, Cured by drug of is not their use attended with injurious effects. Good for old and young of every climate, Ayer's Pills are everywhere the favorite. G. W. Bowman, 26 East Main street, Carlisle, Pa., says: "Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills, and I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. I would not willingly be without them." *

PIONEER SKETCHES,

(New Series.)

By Dr. H. Scott, of Lancaster, Ohio

No. 58.

Miscellaneous.

It must not be supposed that the first settlers of the west were a homogenous class, and no such idea is at any time intended to be conveyed—far from it. There existed the same varieties in every respect—in degree—that are to be found among any people on earth, of any age. But their isolation from former associations in the older states, their mutual wants, and requirements, and dependencies, did create by necessity a community of interest and sympathy and mutual co-operation as long, at least, as the communities continued purely pioneer.

Thus, every man owed every other man labor in building houses and barns, and in rolling logs, clearing off the lands, husking corn and the like, and every newcomer into a settlement had all this aid tendered him without the asking for it; and in like manner every one who did his part was entitled to the same offices in return when he required them. But he who refused or neglected to so co-operate had neither friendship nor sympathy nor neighborship. Any man, even the poorest, could borrow from his neighbor that which he needed and had not, such as log chains, cross-cut saws, iron wedges, frows, augurs, and many other indispensable articles. Every family did not own a sifter to sift corn meal, and then they borrowed from a neighbor. Sometimes one sifter answered for several families, one cross-cut saw for a neighborhood. Nobody ever refused to lend such articles. And any family was sure to come at any time to go to a neighbor's that had a hominy block and pound their hominy. All did not have hominy blocks. And there were many other small articles of use that were so lent. One could even borrow his neighbor's horse to carry his grist to the mill if he did not own a horse. In this system of borrowing, however, there was, with rarest exceptions, an absolute promptness in returning that which was borrowed. This was essential to the existence of good faith.

The classes who emigrated to the west were miscellaneous. There were, first, three classes—those of crippled fortunes, who by going west could get cheap land and make a new start; those of moderate means, and could not compete with their better conditioned neighbors at home; and then—the absolutely poor who went west and became squatters on lands they knew not whose, nor cared. There were large numbers of squatters who opened small plantations and reaped the advantages of their labor for many years without being disturbed. The owners of the land did not wish to disturb them; because they were doing them essential service in clearing off the land and putting up buildings. Even if it were government land, the government would be satisfied to let them alone, because they were adding to the value of the lands by the improvements they made. And then there was the miscellaneous class of emigrants, such as the shiftless and worthless, the purely adventurous, and finally the lawless, perhaps escaping from justice.

But the idle and criminal classes were shown neither sympathy nor even tolerance on the frontiers, and were, by some means, sooner or later hustled out of the settlements. The only class of criminals that annoyed the settlements much was that of horse thieves. There were no burglars, and petty thieves, when found out, were banished by the force of the popular sentiment. But that which contributes most to peace and quietness, and to mutual friendship and good understanding, was the conservative fact that everywhere and among all classes, settlers and backwoodsmen were universally known and disposed, which did not fail to exert a healthful influence on the happiness and social and moral welfare of the whole people.

Every one's character was determined by his deeds, without regard to his dress or his family. The best voucher one could present was his own good character. People did not put a stranger at arm's length and hold him there until a mutual friend came forward to introduce him. The honesty and sincerity of the age did not require that kind of ceremony. And all this I must again be permitted to attribute to the manner in which children were brought up in what I shall never decline to call the good old times—the family and school government, in these latter years mainly abrogated. It should be recognized by this time that mere mental culture, nor the Sunday school, nor both, can compensate for the neglect of moral and religious training in the family and in the schools; and it is the fear of all well-balanced minds that the world will be too long in finding it out. It is all different now, and the etiquette of the more refined age every day introduces scamps and libertines into what is called good society.

ABOUT STEAMSHIPS.

Some Questions and Answers That Every Body Will Find of Interest.

The following questions and answers for the information of the public were lately given by a writer in Scribner's Magazine: The list comprehends all the points most frequently asked about, and it is well worth preserving in your scrapbook:

What is the largest passenger steamship in commission?—City of Paris, 10,499 tons displacement.

What is the first light sighted on the British Coast? the American?—Bull, Cow and Calf, South Coast of Ireland; Nantucket or Fire Island.

What is the greatest number of immigrants ever landed in New York in a year? in a day?—455,450 in 1853. Nearly 10,000, May 11, 1887.

TITLED AMERICANS.

There Are Many Subjects of Uncle Sam Who Hold Orders of Nobility.

It is well known that the constitution of the United States frowns upon titles and orders of nobility, yet there are many native-born Americans whose dignities range from the humbler orders of knighthood to the exalted rank of princes. And I am not alluding to heiresses who have been raised to the peerage by marriage. These instances are already familiar to the public. What is less known is the fact that many American men have won a similar elevation by direct grant from a foreign crown.

The famous scientist, Count Rumford, was a plain New England Yankee named Thompson, who went abroad, attracted general attention by his chemical discoveries, and was ennobled by the king of Bavaria. In our own days Edison has been made a count, and Pullman, of parlor car fame, a marquis by King Humbert, but neither of them cares to sport the title and it is only alluded to in a jocular fashion by their friends. The pope has conferred the Order of Chevalier on several Americans, the most notable being the millionaire Joseph Brannigan, of Providence, R. I. The father of Edgar Saltus was knighted by Queen Victoria, and has the right to call himself Sir Francis Saltus, but he has the good taste never to exercise that right. Marmaduke Richardson, a well-known New Yorker, was made a count by King Humbert, but never sports the title. There are many Americans now living abroad who are not so modest. A certain American criminal, well known to the police here as Max Shinbaum and by numerous other aliases, is now living in Belgium as Baron Shinbaum. And a former Boston spiritualist, Charles Hamilton Fiske by name, made his appearance in Wurtemberg a year or two ago as the Count de Vernois, and for a period enjoyed the highest favor of the king, until he was deposed by concerted action on the part of the native nobility.

In both these cases it is not certain that the titles were genuine, although it is quite possible that they may have been acquired by purchase, an easy step on the descent to nobility. Genuine Spanish titles, for example, may be bought pretty cheap, the price ranging from 30,000 francs for a countship to 800 for a knight-ship. In Italy, the decayed nobility are entitled to adopt strangers as their sons for a monetary consideration, and the adoption carries with it such titular dignity as would be a birth-right of a real son. The consideration, as a rule, is not large. A New York journalist, now living abroad, is said to have purchased the title of "Prince Chialdini," for a mere trifle of $75. To conclude, an instance of titled American citizens born on American soil is afforded by the children of the Marchioness Lanza, the novelist, all of whom are members of the Italian nobility.

MOTHER OF THE SULTAN.

She Is Supreme and Exacts Salaams and Ceremony From Everybody

The harem is not, as might be supposed, a community. It is a union of small, distinct states; each one having its administration and forming a confederation under the all-powerful direction of the sultan's mother. There is quite a cerimonial for everything relating to this grand mistress of the harem. No one can call upon her without first having made the request or received an invitation. It is not permitted to sit in her presence; the person received must remain standing, the hands crossed upon the breast, the head more or less inclined, and thus wait until the august personage deigns to ask a question or authorizes the caller to speak. Every reply must be accompanied by a profound reverance and by the sacrimental words: "Yes, our lady!" or "No, our lady!" All visitors are obliged to wear full dress, and even the first favorite of the sultan would not venture to call upon the sovereign's mother except in a low-neck toilet such as is worn at European courts.

All these evidences of respect and veneration are shown outside of the palace as well as within. When the sultan's mother goes out, escorted by her princely suite, the guard presents arms and she often passes through a double line of prostrated Musselmen praying the mother of their Padishah to intercede for them with her son. The high-born and the rich are not less respectful than the common people.—New York Sun.

An Abundance of Grain

London, Aug. 29.—The Standard in an article on the grain shortage advises the consumption of maize, saying that the United States could export 400,000,000 bushels of maize, and that an extra shilling per bushel would attract all the maize in America necessary to supply Europe with wholesome, nutritious food. The Standard, continuing, says: "Therefore we can feel assured that there will be an abundance of grain for all the people of the world."

THE CHILIAN REVOLUTIONISTS.

Should the United States Recognize the Congressional Party?

Ricardo Trumbull, agent of the Chilian insurgents, writs as follows in Harper's Weekly:

The Congressional party has been successful from the first, and now occupies the territory comprising the northern half of Chili, which yields more than two-thirds of the revenue of this thriving little republic. It has a well-organized government, commands the respect of foreigners as well as Chilians. The territory under its rule is held in undisputed possession, and commercial relations are maintained with all the nations of the world. The peace and order which prevail under the government of congress are in bold contrast to the reign of terror existing under the military regime of the Dictator. Here all the courts administer justice, while under the rule of the Dictator there is only martial law. The character of the government, the extent of territory occupied; the amount of revenue derived; the wealth, character, and intelligence of its supporters; the strength of its naval and land forces; its foreign commerce—all taken together are a combination of circumstances which entitles this government to be recognized as a belligerent.

The late Francis Wharton, than whom I think, I can cite no higher authority, in a learned opinion thus expressed himself in regard to the recognition of belligerency:

"We ought not in cases of insurrection in foreign countries to acknowledge insurgents as belligerents until the insurrection establishes itself on such basis of apparent permanency as to put it, at least for a time, on an apparent parity with the parent state. When such condition of things is manifest, then a proclamation of neutrality should be issued, and the insurgent vessels admitted to the same rights in our ports as those of the government which they assail."

This opinion is likewise held by such high authorities on international law as Woolsey, Dana, Wheaton, Bluntschli, Hall, Phillimore, Fiore, Calvo, and others.

There are also many precedents showing that the United States have repeatedly recognized belligerency in cases where the insurgent government did not begin to possess the character nor the strength possessed by the Congressional government of Chili.

In the South American revolutions, says Woolsey, "the concession of belligerent rights were given freely by neutrals, most freely by the United States; and as for proclamation, our government went so far as to issue one in 1818 for the prevention of unlawful interference in the civil war of Canada, where no civil or military organization had been set up."

The government of the United States also recognized the belligerents of Texas; and in the civil war in Mexico, while recognizing the government of Juarez as the rightful government, the United States recognized both parties to the conflict as belligerents. Bolivia long ago recognized our belligerency. Why should the other governments longer refuse to do us justice?

The sympathy of the American people has always gone out to those struggling against tyranny and oppression, and it has been gratifying to Chilians to know that in the present conflict their sympathies have been decidedly in favor of those fighting against the Dictator Balmaceda. I know of no struggle so deserving of the sympathy of those interested in the success of republican institutions. This revolution was forced on the country by a usurper, who was bent on destroying the constitutional prerogatives of a congress, which asked that the electral rights of the people should be respected. The people were forced to take up arms in defence of their cherished institutions. It was not a revolt against constituted authority, but against the usurpation of a tyrant. The honest and brave men of Chili have sacrificed everything in their patriotic endeavor to re-establish the sway of their costitution. They did not take up arms in order to gratify the ambition of any one man, but to save from strangulation liberty and self-government. If there could be any doubt as to the merits of the case, these have been set aside by the supreme court—the final arbiter in constitutional countries as to the illegality of any acts—which has decided the president's course to be unconstitutional. This court was set aside by the Dictator for so deciding.

Should the fortunes of war favor the Dictator, Chili will sink to the lowest level, under the rule of dishonest men who now surround the Dictator. The places that once were filled by the men who were the honor and glory of the republic are now occupied by gamblers, thieves, demagogues, and men whose only patriotism is that which the prospects of public plunder inspires. All the wealth, character, and intelligence of the country, all that is bravest and best, are ranged on the side of congress. The issue of the contest cannot be doubtful.

WILL CARLETON'S WIFE.

A Poet Who Finds a Help in His Wife —An Ideal American Woman.

Such a woman as Mrs. Will Carleton is by nature a large part of a successful husband's career, writes Edward Bok, in the September Ladies' Home Journal. She is the perfect embodiment of everything that is best and most lovable in woman. No sweeter disposition was ever given to any one. Trials and perplexities know no greater foe than her smile. Everything about her is quiet and gentle. Her life, her work, her charities, her manner, her conversation, all are alike—she is womanly in every respect. The fads of the day trouble her not. The substantial basis of belief in what is good, built by her sterling parentage, is her creed. In her home Mrs. Carleton is a perfect manager. The house, supported from the proceeds of her husband's pen, on Greene avenue, Brooklyn, reflects the nature of she who rules over it. There is no outer show, no inner ostentation; a gentle air of refinement permeates every room. Every piece of furniture is of the best; cheap things Mrs. Carleton abhors. What she buys is calculated to be useful as well as ornamental. Her housekeeping instinct is as perfect as is her taste in the embellishment of a room. She is queen of her domain, and every domestic detail is under her own supervision. Through her table she studies her husband's pleasure; through her home she studies his comfort.

With the reigns of her domestic duties thoroughly mastered with one hand, she drives Pegasus with the other. Many a little detail in her husband's busy life as a literary man is taken charge of by her. She sees his verses long before the editor, the publisher or the public, and upon her literary judgment the poet often relies. Mr. Carleton's lecturing engagements, becoming each year more numerous, has added something to his wife's duties, and when he is away on tour she watches his interests at home.

Mrs. Carleton is a conscientious member of the Washington Avenue Baptist church, of Brooklyn, and one of the most active workers in every one of its departments; every moment of leisure is given over to church duties. For years she has also been one of the managers of the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives—a hopeless and most humane charity, in which Mrs. Carleton's best interests are constantly enlisted.

Mrs. Carleton never comes before the public in any of her works. She is an efficient advocate of all that is good and true; but her methods are of the quiet order.

Voted Him Out.

Dublin, Aug. 29.—Mr. Dwyer Gray's motion to change the composition of the board of directors of the Freeman's Journal company has been carried by the stockholders. The old board, mostly Parnell men, have resigned and the paper will be published to-morrow in the interest of the anti-Parnellites. The vote was 1,300 to 900.

ARE NOW RUNNING NIGHTS.

Isaac D. Smead & Co.'s Furnace Factory in Toledo.

A Bee Attracted by the Hum of Machinery and the Glare of Electric Lights, Tells What He Saw.

While out riding last evening in the vicinity of Auburndale a BEE representative was attracted by the brilliant lights of the Smead factory as well as the hum and noise of the machinery inside, and having never visited the place determined to look through the building now employing 116 men on the very place and grounds where only a few months ago existed a veritable cow pasture.

Fortunately in entering he found Col. Isaac D. Smead in the works himself, busily engaged in looking over the different departments and inspecting the quality of the work from the rough castings to the finely finished and perfect pattern work in the model department, for it should be remembered that every part and portion of the Smead Furnaces and Crematories, including both iron and wooden parts, are made at this factory, and the BEE was also informed that not a single pattern was now in use that was over eight years old, and when this fact is thought of one can see the astonishing improvements that have been made by the superior inventor.

The entire factory is located adjoining the railroad track, where the best of facilities are afforded for the receiving of pig iron and the shipment of the heavy furnaces. While the factory is very large, and when built last year it was thought would be fully adequate to five years growth, other improvements were made necessary this year and have already been completed, and still Mr. Smead has much more ground on his factory lot that will admit of further enlargment whenever necessary.

Passing through the foundry where a large number of men are employed, and where are the different castings, one can not help but notice the very superior quality of workmanship turned out in this department. Many of the pieces are really as smooth as though they had been cast with lead moths instead of rough pig iron. The engine room contains one of the finest Russell engines, 100 horse power, as well as an improved Babcock boiler. The entire room is as neat, clean and tasty as an ordinary house, and not a particle of dirt can be seen anywhere, the walls being nicely painted. This same spirit of neatness and cleanliness is prevalent throughout the whole factory, and certainly shows that some one is carefully looking after the details of the monstrous concern. The boiler is fired with natural gas from the city pipe line, and here quite a wonderful sight was seen in the operation of one of Dr. Tobey's newly patent applied-for gas meters. It is the first one completed, and was built entirely at the Smead factory, having been set up yesterday for the first time. The workings are perfect and superior to other meters, being entirely noiseless, as well as absolutely accurate. Mr. Smead did not hesitate to say that the doctor had a fortune in store for him as a result of this effort.

Passing through the finishing and shipping department, a little idea of the wonderful business which Isaac David is himself doing at the present day can be formed. Here a large closet crematory was nearly completed, which goes to London, England. Orders were here seen and being filled for shipments all over creation, including Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, New Jersey, Nebraska, Maine, Missouri, Kansas, Maryland, New York, Washington, D. C., Colorado, New Mexico, Massachusetts and the old country. This is the daily condition of affairs at the factory, and as over nine tons of iron are cast daily, one can easily see to what extent this business has already grown since the arrival of Isaac David Smead in Toledo February 10, 1882, less than ten years ago, and at that time in search of furnished rooms for himself and his wife, having a very meagre capital, and then ready to begin the work which has responded so well to his inventive genius and indefatigable labors. Now the entire plant represents an expenditure of nearly one million dollars, and in reply to a question as to the output of the present year, Mr. Smead said that this season's business was far ahead of anything in former years, and would, as he estimated, be fully double in amount.
